FOREWORD

FOR all sins, whether of omission or non-omission, of construction or non-construction, of conformity or non-conformity, of crudity or complexity, of diffuseness or dullness, of expression or of method, of inception or conception, of sequence or sequel, of singularity or individuality,—likewise for all errors whether technical and pertaining to the printer, or literary and pertaining to the editors, and for everything imaginable or unimaginable that may be found commendable or uncommendable, pleasing or displeasing, aggravating or satisfying in this humble volume for which no man will be the wiser and no woman the worse,

Gentle Reviewer, Be Merciful Unto Us!

And — from willing misquotations, —from sentences garbled, and randomly set forth to the public without context, continuation or conclusion, in attempt to do injury to both THE LANTHORN and its editors, —from the objective analysis of Upper Classmen, Theologues and other distinguished persons, who, by reason of their superior intellectuality to all the rest of the world, are always able, and more than ready, to condemn a book without reading it,

May an Honest Press Deliver Us!

THE EDITORS.

o William Decker, whose untiring ambition and unceasing efforts coupled with his benevolent spirit have always aimed at a higher education, better college communities, and a greater Susquehanna, we the Class of nineteen-fifteen are honored by respectfully dedicating this volume.

WILLIAM DECKER

ILLIAM DECKER, third son of Henry and Mary Decker, deceased, was born in 1861 at the old homestead in Clinton township, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, which is located about two miles west of Montgomery. He is of German descent; was reared amid stern surroundings and inherited his father's occupation—that of a farmer. During a few short winter terms he attended a country school where was laid the basis of his education to which he has added by self-study and discipline, so that today he may be regarded as a self-educated man.

While assisting his father in building homes at Montgomery in 1888 he came in contact with one, who during the Spring of the same year, became a partner in his first business venture which was that of manufacturing extension tables. After fifteen years this partnership was dissolved and for eleven years Mr. Decker has been sole owner of the above business, which during 1913 assumed the magnitude of a little more than a half million dollars output. By integrity, industry, and intuitive judgment he has won a place among the foremost manufacturers of this day, which success is largely due to intense application and severe accuracy. His business connection with other factories and enterprises located within the borough lends strength to the same.

Mr. Decker is a staunch Lutheran and a faithful attendant at the services of his church. He teaches a large Bible class of men which is organized according to the state requirement of O. A. B. C. classes, through which medium great good is being accomplished. Few men of equal means surpass him in works of benevolence, and we as a University are the grateful recipient of an endowment of $25,000 from this generous-hearted individual. Universities, Seminaries, and Associations have not alone come within the above bounds, but private deeds of charity are being performed along scriptural lines, without the right hand knowing what the left hand is doing. His advice and association are much sought by ministers and laymen.

He is a vice president of the Pennsylvania State S. S. Association, a member of the executive committee of the Lycoming County S. S. Association, a director of Susquehanna University, and of Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, Pa.

Mr. Decker has been a resident of Montgomery for about twenty-eight years and now resides on Montgomery street in the most stately residence that the borough affords. He has an interesting family of three sons and three daughters. He is that type of manhood that inspires confidence in all who come in contact with him, and who gives to the community in which he resides, a most potent force for moral and religious advancement. We bespeak for him the fullest realizations of his ambitions and pray that many years of usefulness may be added to his life.

SUSQUEHANNA

(Words and Music by E. E. SHELDON)

The Story we would tell you, friends, would cover many a book,
The subject matter of the same is found in every nook,
Of old S. U.'s large campus, the common battleground,
Whose trees might whisper secrets,
grave, amusing and profound.

Chorus

Of Susquehanna now we sing, let Susquehanna's praises ring,
Loyal to her by night and by noon, we'll
wave the Orange and Maroon,
Loyal to her by night and by noon, we'll
wave the Orange and Maroon.

How dear to one and all the name their Alma Mater bears,
When they have left its classic halls to shoulder worldly cares,
O, winning maids and noble lords, of
dear old college days,
Come join in recollections fond, and tell us of your ways.

In class-room and on gridiron, friends,
S. U. will stand the test,
Defeat to her a word unknown, her motto, "Do your best,"
With vim then let us give the yell, display her banner bright,
That all may know of old S. U., she stands for God and right.

SENIORS

SENIOR POEM

FOUR years ago we entered here,
When all our hopes were bright,
To have our hazy intellects
Filled with the golden light.

Tho' our path was strewn with obstacles,
Over which we had to climb,
And many were the difficulties
That beset us from time to time.

We always assisted each other,
As the days and the years went by,
Until we feel like sisters and brothers
Who have met to say good-bye.

We've traveled well together,
Thru all these happy days,
And now the journey's over,
We face the forking ways.

May all these ties be strengthened,
As now we leave these halls,
And friendships still grow stronger
Where e'er the future calls.

The time has come for parting,
When we must say fare-well
To all our college friends,
Whom we have learned to love so well.

Then here's to the dear old class,
The greatest S. U. has ever seen,
Long may the thoughts in our memories linger
Of our great old class Fourteen.

SENIOR HISTORY

O remember that success lies within ourselves—in our own brain, our own ambition, our own courage and determination. To expect difficulties and force our way through them. To turn hard experience into capital for future struggles. This will make the history of the Senior class.

Our history to you is the impression we leave; your history to us is pleasant memories.

Since the beginning of time, Service has been the one great ambition which has grasped men and brought forth from them what worth they contained. By this worth are we judged. To base our expectations of reward on a solid foundation of service rendered. To be willing to pay the price of success in honest effort. To look upon our work as an opportunity to be seized with joy and made the most of, and not as a painful drudgery to be reluctantly endured. This is required of service. How are we going to stand the test? Just as men are judged by their labors, so is an institution judged by its graduates, and in all our endeavors we should never permit that thought to leave us.

It is safe to say that throughout our college life the class of Nineteen-fourteen has always been the first to further wholesome interests and to promote good fellowship.

It is like a game of checkers and it is our turn to move out into the world. We can see the Fates clamoring for possession of us as if they would tear us asunder, but we are not afraid.

Our one and ever foremost wish is that we may have dropped something along our college career that will be a benefit to those who follow after.

SENIOR PROPHECY

BEING called upon to produce our prophecy we were somewhat at a loss to know just how to begin it. Many ideas had entered our minds, but none of them were in conformity to our idea of a prophecy. In fact we had grown weary and tired of the task when, to secure a little recreation, we decided to take a journey to the river in expectation of receiving some inspiration which would aid us materially in our work.

While there among the beautiful flowers and overhanging trees which almost obstructed our view of the peaceful river, we began to discuss the members of our class, one by one, and finally reached the following conclusions only by a definite analyzation of each member.

As instructor of mathematics at dear old S. U. will be the destiny of Alice Mae Bastian. Being rather mathematically inclined and having an interest in one of Susquehanna's enterprising young men, no other place or position could be dreamed of.

To believe that Frank P. Boyer would become other than the president of one of our leading American colleges, would be to reach a conclusion without knowing him. We believe also that his great ambition to rise higher will carry him even farther than our predicted position although for the present we cannot determine what it might be.

Having a great desire to enter newspaper work and thence into politics, D. Edwin Ditzler will become one of America's greatest statesmen. Some time we shall hear the name of "Ed" Ditzler lauded by every citizen of the United States in connection with such names as Lincoln and Washington.

Paul M. Kinports will become a great minister in the Lutheran church and will occupy the pulpit of the leading Lutheran church in New York City. His great deeds will be praised as long as the earth shall stand.

Chemistry is his hearts desire and so it shall be. Lewis R. Lenhart will be employed by one of the great sugar refining companies in the South as their Chief Chemist and shall have many men under his tutelage.

Julia D. Liston will become a professor in the Phoenix High School, Phoenix, Arizona. This position she will not occupy long after leaving S. U., but will become the wife of a rich Count and will spend her time in France and Switzerland. Upon these countries she will write a book which will make her famous.

M. Rosalie McCormick is destined to become a Medical Doctor. Success shall crown her efforts until she occupies a very prominent position in the medical world and shall be acknowledged as a good authority upon every case involving medical advice.

Since he has great love for leading men into the way they should go and since he has directed all his efforts toward those who "have never known," Harry W. Miller will leave for foreign shores as a missionary a few years after leaving college. After laboring thirty-five years in the foreign field he will have done a grand and noble work. He will then deliver lectures throughout the world on various phases of missionary work.

We cannot ascertain what the intentions of Althea Ressler are, yet we are almost positive she is going to become an ardent supporter of woman suffrage. If she does she will attain even a higher standing than Jane Addams. She will be a great factor in making woman suffrage a reality.

Upon the completion of her college course, Sara C. Rine will spend some time in Italy, Switzerland and other countries studying art. She will return and begin an art studio in Chicago. Several of her masterpieces will be sold, the proceeds of which will enable her to live a life of ease ever afterward.

Dr. Samuel Shope, a specialist on the ear, eye and nose, who has practiced in Harrisburg, Pa., for a number of years, and who is a member of the class of nineteen-fourteen, will have a very much larger practice a few years hence. In fact he will be compelled to exchange his office for a large building and will have a number of specialists under his command.

"Rough" Smith, so called we know not why, will become one of the world's greatest evangelists. By his marvelous flow of oratory he will be able to sway large audiences and win them to the Master. A comparison with Sunday would be entirely out of order.

Having unusual musical talents, Mary Steele will occupy one of the greatest positions in the musical realm. She will display her musical ability unto the world by playing before large and appreciative audiences in foreign countries.

"Red" Streamer is destined to become a great pharmacist who will give unto all men many valuable prescriptions which will heal all the diseases the flesh is heir to.

Last but not least, George R. Styer's services are sold to High School work, at which his success will be greater than any one High School professor in all the land.

JUNIOR POEM

SHOULD you ask me who the leader
Of this class of wise young students,
Who it is who guides them truly
When the youngsters get unruly
Wields the gavel at the class meets
Chosen too, by all his classmates
I should answer, I should tell you
Harold—tall and manly,
Grave and serious—at least would be—
One in that position should be.
If still further you should ask me, saying—
Who is Gertrude? Tell me now of this fair damsel—
I should answer you in this wise
Gertie's just one great big treasure
Far beyond your ken or measure,
And 'tis she who keeps the records,
Writes therein all joys and ills.
And besides this fair young maiden,
Victor, cashier, who pays the bills,
Should you ask me more of Juniors
Others in this third year tribe,
I should answer you in this wise,
Two there are of fine young men,
Quite intent on honors winning
Far too good for common sinning,—
"Don" and "John," all Juniors greet them
And challenge all classes in brightness to beat them.
Should you still continue trying
To be in Junior matters prying,
Without doubt I then should tell you
That there's Juniors who are sprinters
It is they who win the races,
In athletics set the paces,
Strong and fleet and fair to see
Destined business men to be,
From a far and distant country
Teddy hears of S. U.'s fame

How they teach of Caesar's wars
Flunk their students by the scores
Eastward then rushed Teddy, saying—
"There I'll wrestle or I'll fall."
So he came, and saw, and conquered,
Caesar boasts, but that is all.
Without question, I should tell you
Of our "Deenie," proud and haughty,
Maid with dusky hair and lashes,
With a smile that always flashes
You a bonny, bright, good cheer.
Just believe me, she's a dear.
Then there's Christine, cute and steady,
Keen for work, or pleasure ready,
Christine always bright and cheery
With helpful hand for all who're weary,
That's not all there is about her—
We simply can not do without her.
"Cy" Ard? Yes, then there's Cyrus
Else, where'd be our jokes and jestings—
Classmates pleasing—teacher's testings.
They do say we study too—
Find out please what we can't do.

With apologies to all who care a cent for "Hiawatha."

JUNIOR HISTORY

ANOTHER year of college life has passed away and you are again permitted to read some of the doings of the most illustrious class of Susquehanna—the class of Nineteen Hundred and Fifteen.

We started the school year with the same spirit which has always been manifested by our class—good class work and zeal and vim in everything else which we undertook.

Unfortunately, we have been losers materially, through the emigration of several of our number. One of our brightest intellectual lights heeded the call of the "little brown school house," and is now testing the value of the hickory and the birch, while another member of equal intellectual luminosity has chosen to migrate to a sister seat of learning whence comes pleasing reports of his progress. On the other hand our numbers have been increased by the arrival of two new members who chose to cast their lot with us at the beginning of this scholastic year. Then, too, our hearts were gladdened upon being assured by several of our former schoolmates, who are now teaching, that they had fully decided to graduate with the "class of all classes," and would be of our number at the beginning of next year.

The new class officers were elected at a meeting held early in the fall term, and since that time have been quietly working for the best welfare of the class. The LANTHORN staff have also been working hard, and the class as a whole, working harmoniously together, have succeeded in doing wonders.

Even as from our advent into college, our boys are the mainstay of this year's athletic teams. When football was resumed last fall our fellows responded nobly to the call for gridiron men. We also have the honor of saying that the Varsity basketball team has more fellows from the nineteen fifteen class than from any other class in college. Much of the credit of our splendid team is due to them.

Thus far in the year our class has done nothing deserving more than mediocre merit, but if opportunity presents itself to do something notable we feel confident that our class will be able to grapple with the situation. As we go on doing our duty in a quiet way and filling our little niche in college life, we feel that there must be some with a proper sense of appreciation for modest earnest endeavor when we remember Shakespeare's words, "All is not gold that glitters."

But enough of this. The muse has bidden the historian cease, and notifies all to anticipate even greater things for the class of Nineteen-fifteen next year.

"Cy"

"Oh Criminy." "By George."

This concentrated mass of originality entered our sacred institution five years ago a reticent, bashful, young man. He is as fond of his studies as a girl is of a mouse. Never, in his three years of college life, has any professor been able to bring him to bay by the question method, as his store of general information is so vast and his imagination so vivid, that you never find him wanting for an answer. Indeed, had he been privileged to take the place of the twenty-three ribbed man, future inventors would have lost many golden opportunities. Any one of his love episodes would rival that of Romeo. He has the happy faculty of adapting himself to existing conditions, so that we find him an equally welcome visitor at Gustavus Adolphus and Seibert Halls. For several years "Cy" appeared to have a decided preference for the millinery trade, but recently strange tales have come to us concerning a Center County dame. When you perceive the gigantic form of this colossus you will infer at once that his physical ability is unquestioned. However, let it suffice to say, that before him lies a great future, and coupled with his adapted profession, he will be able to exert an immense influence for good throughout his chosen sphere and bring honor to himself, his class, and his Alma Mater.

JERSEY SHORE

"Chong," "Red"

"O Heck." "By Darn."

Pinnacled with a hirsutic growth as stiff and as brilliantly colored as any that ever adorned the head of a son of "the ould sod," Bangson came to us several years ago from the county of lumber, paper, and boots.—Lycoming. Being somewhat rustic in his manners and customs and being reared in a Christian environment, John did not at first enter into the frivolities that tend to make college life a pleasure, but instead spent his entire time plugging. Under the influence of the advice, doctrine, and association of "Cy" Ard, his room-mate, "Red" in a short time, began to take advantage of the irregularities of a school career and became one of our most ardent co-workers of iniquity. As such he has been known to steal chickens, and worse than that, to smoke mullen leaves and to drink iced tea from a beer bottle. Speaking more conservatively, Bangson has made a host of friends both in school and elsewhere, and his true, unswerving friendship has each year cemented these bonds more firmly together, while his honesty and good traits have won for him a warm place in the hearts and memories of every one with whom he comes in contact. As a student John is in the front rank. His ability and desire to study and then doing it, coupled with his large and successful pedagogical career have made Bangson one of the clearest, brainiest, and most logical thinkers of our class.

WALTER EDWARD BROWN

MILROY

"Brownie," "Deacon"

"Golly Sakes."

Let us follow the career of this unique personage from the time of his entrance to the present, that we may give you a better understanding of his peculiar characteristics. He was a modest, unassuming, tidy, self-admiring student whom no girls could beguile nor ponies mislead. For the first few weeks of his college life it was the general opinion among the old students, judging from his manners and speech, that Walter was a new professor in the Theological department. Time soon revealed a different story, but still there clung to him an atmosphere of ministerial dignity. The cause of this was later found out to be a case of a family characteristic as Brown was frequently heard making references to "Uncle Charley," better known to the other students as Prexy. "Deacon" also makes a specialty of shaking hands. Again heredity shows forth. During his Sophomore year he fell a victim to the amative disease and slowly began to assume more defined masculine ways and to pay less attention to his class room work. He has spent quite a few years examining different kinds of hosiery—in the factory, and has also had much experience in salesmanship and store business. While in college Brown has made many friends and on account of his being a true, honest, sincere, and energetic fellow has been enabled to keep them all.

"Gus," "Dan," "Danosk"

// * r × 2°

Be calm gentle reader he is not nearly so dangerous as you may imagine. "Gus" came from the Knob country to Susquehanna for his first spring term some time during the middle ages. Although at first somewhat rusticated in his ways and dress, yet under the guidance and direction of Charley Miller and many lady friends he has developed into a second Beau Brummel. His vocabulary is large and varied. His speech at times carries the hearer to ethereal heights only to suddenly drop him to the deepest abyss of hell. During his apprenticeship under Prexy "Dan" obtained the proctorship on third floor and since then his brainstormings have not been of such frequent occurrence. Having won the good graces of our garrulous classmate, Christine, and being under her magnetic influence great good will surely radiate from this master mind. "Danosk" is an orator of no mean ability. His originalty and manner of expression render his speech especially forceful and pleasing. He is a shark in classes, at least he has the Profs. believing so. But having spent much of his time during the past year in a "Christine" environment we have noticed a decided change for the better and later hope to find "Danosk" doing successful work in the ministerial field.

"Prof"

"Gee Whiz."

To the outside world he is professor, but to us he is one of the boys. Prof. came to us in the fall of 1912 as a graduate of C. V. S. N. S. By ardently applying himself to his studies he has very satisfactorily performed his duties as assistant principal of the Academy while he continued his work with our class. Not only has he succeeded as teacher in the preparatory department but in our class he has forged to the front and is admitted by his fellow-students as one of the most promising products of this class so prodigal of intellectual prodigies. But not all of his time is spent in plugging as he is a chap who enjoys participating in athletics, in making the night hideous in his endeavor to rid himself of an excess of musical talent, and last but not least, in soliloquizing most somberly over those amorous events in which he has played a leading part during his early life. However, since his arrival with us he has devoted his entire time and attention to our modest retiring co-eds, and remembering his good looks and charming conversational powers, we do not wonder that his advances have invariably proven successful. This man, the possessor of an excellent physique, a pleasing personality, and superior intellectual qualifications, cannot help but win success as a wielder of the withe.

"There lies a deal of deviltry beneath his mild exterior."

"Bo," "Chief Iodine"

"Oh Cripny."

Here is a fellow who possesses a nature all his own. "Bo" thoroughly believes that it is neither judicious nor practical to let his studies interfere with his education, but emphatically states that a fellow will be educated by the time he graduates. As a manipulator of the deck he is there, and is so ardent a lover of "500" that he often misses meals to indulge in it. Harold has always been one of the first to report when calls have been made for athletic candidates. Starting, practically in his infancy, to actively engage in field and floor sports, "Chief" has developed so rapidly, that to-day he is one of the school's head-liners. Although holding his own in football and baseball, he is at his best in basketball, and is one of our fastest and most clever men on the floor. Harold is innocence personified from the exterior, but when it comes to a good old rough-house he is always found in the thick of the fray. In spite of this tendency, he has never been known to flunk. Follmer has always shown a great interest for the welfare of his class, and when 1915 wanted to pull something off, this ostrich-gaited youth was always on the job. Although reared under pastoral influences, Harold is now taking a scientific course with the chief ambition of coralling a number of love molecules in Philadelphia.

"Pud"

"What's that?"

This fair one came into our midst holding a medal and has proven herself capable of winning more. These honors were not won by chance but by persistent effort. We do not know the time when Susie came to class without having thoroughly mastered even the minutest details of the study. But if such should happen she would surely flink as her conscience would not permit her to bluff. The only crime this modest heavyweight will do is, skip class when the rest of the class do so. With all her affinity for books she still has some left for campus, even allowing them to be idle while she bravely battles in cupid's dizzy Maelstrom. She is not only a good "Per-singer" but is also a good alto-singer and as such is holding one of the most prominent places on the Girls' Glee Club. We do not mean that "Pud" holds this prominent position physically but vocally. Although Susie was somewhat backward and perceptibly verdant at first, she has proven herself to be a good, faithful, energetic member of the class of nineteen fifteen. She has not only been a willing follower but an excellent initiator of the most splendid movements in the class. We need not prophesy but can assure for this modest sedate member success in all phases of her activities.

WILLIAM M. GORTNER

MANSFIELD

Mansfield State Normal; Scrub Basketball '13; Varsity Tennis '13; Wieand Sophomore Prize; Assistant Business Manager LANTHORN; Philo; Classical; Scientific; Chemistry.

"Bill," "Willie"

"You old P. C."

Blushing little beauty that he is whose Christian name is William, but on account of certain characteristics is called "Willie." The aforementioned came to us in our freshman year from the Mansfield State Normal School and the class has been greatly enriched by the addition. "Bill's" tastes are very aesthetic, so that if every hair is not in place, his cravat not properly tied, or his hat not tilted at the proper angle, his sense of immaculate beauty is so disturbed that he will not leave his room until he has fussed himself into proper shape. While he does not excel in athletics, he is, nevertheless, a star of the first magnitude in tennis, has won honors on the basketball floor, and is a past grand master in the Terpsichorean art. "Bill" is very much devoted to his studies, though he would have his classmates believe otherwise. He has had innumerable girls in his time, or at least he says so, but we have never seen him with a lady and have noticed many times that if a female moved towards him he generally started for a hiding place, lest he should be obliged to walk or talk with the fair one. After a narrow escape like this and being safely barricaded in his room "Bill" spins many tales of his former romantic escapades. "Willie's" tendency along educational lines is towards the sciences, chemistry being his specialty. He intends continuing a more advanced course in this line of work and with his present thorough foundation will undoubtedly create an enviable record for himself in the scientific world.

"Now by two-headed Janus, Nature hath framed strange fellows in her time."

IRA CHRISTIAN GROSS

BEAVERTOWN

Beavertown High School; Susquehanna Academy; Collegiate Football '13; Scrub Basketball '12, '13; Scrub Baseball; College Entrance Prize; Associate Editor LANTHORN; Y. M. C. A.; Clio; Scientific; Law.

"Irene"

"Say?" = ?*x! A+!

In attempting to give an account of Gross' college days we cannot help but think of him as a landmark of Susquehanna. He came shortly after the mediaeval period and has been here off and on ever since. The cause for the longevity of "Irene's" college life was that he was waiting for God's clock to strike the hour and the 1915 class to step forth. We cannot help but feel proud of having such a character with his innumerable capabilities and inestimable possibilities join us. His brilliancy is but displayed when he is called upon in Latin class, for this is his hobby. He can read it as well without study as most of us can with several hours of wearisome pondering. Gross' motto is: "Recitation without study is good, but good recitation without study is better." The latter part being his favorite, but it is only such fellows as he with a strong intellect who can keep such a motto and still shine in all his undertakings. He is a big-hearted, happy-go-lucky fellow possessed of an illumined personality. Ira is a good example of the maxim that habit grows with age. We believe that at one time he chewed his finger and now he chews his whole fist. To hear him sing we would think it was an Italian serenade with a horse fiddle playing a prominent part. Gross' amorous relations are many and varied, he believing that variety is the spice of life.

"He poureth forth his craven soul through a disjointed larynx."

"Fat"

"Aw, My Gosh."

Green as a tropical landscape was this rustic lad on entering the portals of Susquehanna. But having an unusual amount of grit he gradually threw off his Perry County maneuvers until now he has acquired all the requisites of a popular student. This bulky piece of flesh, brains, and ginger has proven himself a worthy member of our class. He is one of the few men who have successfully bluffed one girl for two years into believing that she is the only one. Having spent several summers as a seashore trolley conductor he is a more or less noteworthy conductor of "fairs." His occasional trips to Sunbury and Milroy are taken only as a source of diversion and deserve little mention here. "Fat's" athletic physique and ability have secured for him a place on all Varsity teams representing this institution. In baseball John has proven a very efficient sub-shortstop with Wagner on the bench. His playing is always marked by cleanliness and his efforts are directed more for the glory of Susquehanna than for himself. Harkins is so closely attached to his studies that this propensity has won for him an undeniable drag with the profs., which is verified by his being selected as tutor in the absence of any one of them. Despite the old adage that nobody loves a fat man, the jovial, hearty disposition of this heavyweight makes him one of the best liked men on the campus.

*"If he be not fellowe with the best king
Thou shalt find him king of good fellows."*

PENNSYLVANIA FURNACE

S. U. Academy; Assistant Manager Baseball; Varsity Baseball '12, '13, '14; Clio; Scientific Teaching.

"Fat"

"Cock Robin."

"Fat" has a noble look but a slightly dutch accent which may be accounted for by considering whence he came. Harpster arrived at school as a Prep so covered with moss that the only visible part of him was his head, but nevertheless he possessed sufficient inspiration to carry him along thus far with his work. He is a good student and ranks high in his class even though he is not with us continually. His feet are also highly rank. Holding the position of Assistant Principal in the town High School he does his college work by night and this gives him less time for his nightly carousals for which he was formerly noted. Ralph has a good, congenial disposition, but also an irritable temper which is liable to spring at you at the least provocation. However, he knows his place and keeps it, too. He has been the mainstay in the outer garden of our baseball team for the past few years and has always labored for the best interests of the institution. His love affairs are very complicated and hard to diagnose. That he has been and still is subject to the wiles of the fair ones is certain, but just when and where we are unable to state, as he usually takes his trips at such hours of the night when most people prefer to be in bed. "Fat" is possessed of sufficient determination and energy to carry him through the vicissitudes of life, and when we consider the success he has attained as a pedagogue in the past we cannot be too optimistic for the future.

"Tutors should behave reverently before their pupils."

RALPH W. E. KLINE

WEST HAZLETON

Prepared at Gowen City High School; DuShore High School; Hazleton High School, and Thiel College; Philo; Y. M. C. A.; Classical; Teaching.

"Maybelle"

"Hokcy Mokes." "Gorsh."

Behold the wonder! His sobriquet is certainly suggestive of his person. Who is so tender eyed and fair that one may possibly conclude he belongs to the weaker sex. Joining us as a "Junior" he quickly impressed us with his fine qualities, his studious habits and his dainty etiquette. Owing to the short interval of time he has been with us we are unable to give a complete description of this species and to even attempt would be utter folly.

He delights in telling his class how little he studies, especially when he recites a lesson in Psychology verbatim. By sincere and honest work he forged to the first division of the class and unless some outer influences deflect him from his path he has assurance of remaining there. The class surely can feel proud of this man as he is one of the many good vocalists of the class who have won a place on the Glee Club. We might some day find him singing in the New York Hippodrome if he continues to progress as rapidly as he has in the past. It has been rumored that he is deeply in love, possibly accounting for his occasional vacations, home sickness, and lack of funds. While regularly associated with the ladies here at school he has not manifested a liking for any one particular personage. But there is a reason, and the reason is at home. Prudent and painstaking in all his work and a perfect lady in everything he does.

"I am not in the roll of common men."

GUY CLARK LAUVER

MILROY

Milroy High School; Reserve Baseball '12, '13; Reserve Basketball '13, '14; Reserve Football '13; Clio; Scientific; Teaching.

"Dynam"

"Me and Perry."

Three years ago Milroy opened its jaws and spit forth this modern Ananias. In him there is a direct conflict of all the constituents of his psychological self. Guy is desirous of becoming saintly, rich, and proficient in athletics and classroom work, but when crossed in any one of his projects he gives vent to his feelings by a magnificent oracular outburst of poly-syllabic adjectives. "Dynam" has all the requisites of a lightning rod agent. His language is as graceful as the French, as forceful as the German, and as pleasing to the moralist as Algebra is to a Freshman. He has a marked genialty and in repartee is always ready with a witty answer. He also has at his command a never-failing supply of thrilling escapades and incidents concerning the Kischocoquillis valley, with "me and Perry" always dividing the honors of a Hairbreath Harry. Guy has always taken an active part in all athletics and by his grit, courage and effort is rapidly nearing perfection. In class he is never wanting for an answer and has proven himself to be a telepathist by the manner in which he preconceives the ideas of the professors.

However, we must not judge Guy too harshly for in him is imbedded a marvelous personality and a kind, affectionate heart, which characteristics are very well demonstrated when in company with one or more of his numerous girls, whether they be at Milroy, Selinsgrove or Sunbury.

"Jess," "Blue Balls"

"O heck, come on, fellows."

We are honored in having this brawny son of the soil with us. As a boy he was inspired by the beauties of nature resplendent upon the banks of the Susquehanna; as a student our school has nurtured him. Having laid a firm foundation during the preparatory years of his school life, Jess entered college with us smiling at the mountains which others observed in the distance. Owing to the momentum which he acquired during his early years, he is, in three years, successfully crossing these mountains which are requiring four years of patient toil for the remainder of us. Our class has always found him ready to give advice and counsel in times of trouble, and never is he quite so happy as when the class, by following his suggestions, has achieved success. "Blue Balls" is a man of firm convictions and having once taken a stand, he is as easily moved from his position as is "Old Sol" from his seat in the heavens. Many times has the grit, ginger, and determination of this calloused youth been of inestimable value to us as a class. Especially have these qualities revealed themselves in contests for athletic superiority, where Lubold has always proven himself no mean adversary. Remembering the birches already broken and the crowns already won, we can but foresee for this promising young pedagogue a prosperous and happy career as master of some "little brown house."

"Ted" came to us from Sweden via Brooklyn, and for a time remained somewhat of a mystery to most of the students, but finally we became acquainted with this rosy-cheeked biped and have indeed found him to be a capital fellow. He is a very apt and able student and is strong on taking class room notes, even at times jotting down a few points of Prexy's numerous chapel lectures. Lundquist is one of those bright, dapper fellows that always greet you with a smile, and his cheerful grin would light up Hades if he should ever be so unfortunate as to get there. He has Ruffo beaten to a frazzle when it comes to singing, and it is extremely fortunate that Hammerstein has not yet robbed us of him, one of the best singers on our Glee Club. In the short time that Ted has been with us he has become well liked by every one and the class of 1915 heartily welcome this fair haired fellow into their midst and wish him all kinds of good fortune in whatever course in life that he pursues.

We are not surprised, dear reader, that you are deceived by the appearance of this cool-headed, smooth-toned, venerable looking classmate of ours. Even we ourselves mistook him for a seminary grad, when he first took up his abode with us, and were so beguiled as to elect him as our first class president. "Miggs" is a shiftless, dormant, but generous-hearted fellow and, therefore, a friend of everyone. Of the many athletes whom our class has produced, "Cy" has proven himself one of the best. He has been a faithful "Pan-Handler" and "Union Workman" ever since his advent into college, which fact undoubtedly accounts for his great physical prowess. His pleasing personality makes him especially popular among the girls. On entering college he deigned to look at any co-ed lest Lillian should hear of it, and as a result he would lose the "Price." But again has the old adage proved true that: "He who entereth college with a regular girl shall lose the same ere the sophomore year goes by." Indeed we now find him a willing subject to the wiles of the fair ones. His splendid physique combined with his clear voice and intellectual ability insure unusual success for him as a pulpit orator.

"Oh bed, Oh bed, delicious bed."

"Abe"

"Pass the bread."

Here is a member of our class conspicuous because of his eccentricities. In the fall of 1909 when this backwoodsman alighted at the Selinsgrove station for the first time he soon betrayed his inexperience. The boys enjoyed many a joke at his expense, but "Abe" despite his verdancy soon acclimated and showed the fellows he could take care of himself. Many of his early peculiarities still cling to him, so that today we find him coming to class late, falling asleep while there, singing in a discordant tone, orating in a heart-melting manner, sprinting in his own peculiar fashion, and gormandizing for the satiation of a voracious appetite. But these are individual traits of character noticeable only because of their oddity. Underlying these minor characteristics, we find firmly embedded in this Herculean figure those principles which go to make up a manly man. Our class has shown its implicit faith in his honesty by electing him to the office of treasurer for two consecutive years. "Abe" has also proven his constancy by remaining true to his old love, notwithstanding the fact that many of our girls have plotted and schemed to capture this fair son of the forest, they have done so in vain and Bertha remains his guiding star. From youth up "Abe" has had high and lofty ideals concerning his life work and our most sincere desire is that they may be realized, yet our hearts sink within us when we think what fearful havoc the realization of his life plans will bring upon the poultry yards of his parishioners.

"Deen"

"I've got a trade last for you."

Behold the "Deen" of our class! This is what we have always called her, but she has asked us to explain that she is not the head of the college faculty or a divine dignitary of any kind but a faithful member of the Junior class. She is a bright, cheerful girl, ever ready to greet her friends with a smile. One of the greatest pleasures of this mirthful mischievous maiden is in making wry faces when her professors have their backs turned. New students find in her a kind, considerate friend,—one who is always ready to assist them and help allay that dreaded and oftentimes fatal disease known as homesickness in college life. Her favorite form of greeting to her friends is, "I've got a trade-last for you," so that she is continually receiving those complimentary remarks which are due her. Those who fell a victim to the winsome ways of this dark-eyed one during her sojourn with us learned sooner or later that she had not entered our class unattended, but that her escort of high school days had deemed it expedient that they should continue their education together. In fulfilling her mission in life, whatever it may be, we bespeak for this attractive personage unbounded success.

"O flatter me, for love delights in praises."

"Chris," "Chrystal"

"Darn it."

Well, you wouldn't think it, but what you see now as a coquettish little co-ed matriculated at Susquehanna four years ago as a bashful "saurkrauteur" from York County down. What wondrous changes time has wrought. "Chrystal" entered into the spirit of college life with a vigor and a vim which she has maintained throughout her course, and has always taken a hearty interest in every movement that had for its aim the betterment of class or college conditions. Although being handicapped by the strict guardianship of Prexy, nevertheless, "Chris'" charms were not passed by unnoticed and as a result has had countless gentlemen friends, as many as three being in the race at the same time. While she the queen and mistress of the situation undoubtedly sat back in haughty grandeur and laughed with fiendish glee at "what fool these mortals be,"—sounds like Jingling Johnson, but will apologize for we didn't mean to do it. "Chrystal" started to talk when she was eight months old and it has been one continuous oration for nineteen years, but this happy faculty stands her in good stead when it comes to class room work. For she can talk and make a brilliant recitation when there is really not much to be said, and then by flashing her heart-breaking smile at the professor he invariably falls for it and passes her up with 98.

"As merry as the day is long."

"Bull"

"Aw, come on." "By Heck."

When you hear this man talk with his deep voice coming from a region down around his appendix you will readily understand the cause for the "Bull." Shannon entered in the Freshman year and manifested an intense interest in class and college affairs from the outset, which interest has not waned but has wonderfully increased in the meantime. A quiet, unassuming manner has won for him a bunch of friends and well he merits them. "Bull" is always in for a good time and if there is anything doing in the rough-house line he is generally on hand. He is also somewhat of a ladies' man and is quite popular with the society of Sunbury, Selinsgrove and intermediate points. The class of 1915 is noted for the athletes which it has produced and among the foremost of them stands Shannon. Possessed of an excellent physique and clear head, "Bull" has been rightly chosen as one of the first eleven, five, and nine. He also holds a very prominent position with the "table ten" in the dining room and his marvelous appetite is only exceeded by the length of time that is required to appease the same. Quite frequently "Bull" travels home to get some of the cooking that Mother does and thereby get caught up with his meals. In whatever line of pursuit "Bull" takes up, whether a minister by trade or a trolley conductor, he will enter upon his duties with the best wishes of his friends and classmates.

"Here cometh the Bull of Bashan."

"Pop," "Bill"

"Don't you believe that?"

Certainly not, you would never think, by looking at his picture, that he is married. But he is, all right, and he has more than a little brown fence running around the house, too. Yes, he has two. "Bill" came to Susquehanna many years ago in a somewhat wild and woolly condition. During his first year here he frequently showed, by banging up his room or shooting a fly off some unsuspecting person's nose, that he had not forgotten how to handle a six-shooter and that the "Alkali Ike stuff" was not a lost art with him. "Pop" is exceptionally well trained as a Mexican athlete and his ever ready answers in the class room and out of it have absolutely proven that he cannot be cornered even in the severest cross-examination. Watts always heartily welcomes the new students, and the marvelous tales that he spins are a continuous source of wonderment to them and amusement to others. As a humorist and practical joker he is unexcelled, so when you see that copyrighted grin of his, you may know that there is going to be something doing. His rich wit, spicy jokes, and original tricks will go down in this school's history as the best ever. "Bill" has served a time in the U. S. Army as anyone can readily tell by noting his one cylinder, hep-hep movement. Always has "Pop" been a true and strong supporter of nineteen fifteen, and his optimism, affability, and good judgment have made him a friend of everyone.

"Allie," "Alex"

"Now, smarty."

One would never imagine to look at her that this blushing, little maiden hails from the city of Brotherly Love, piggeries, and graft, but she does, yes, she does. Shortly after her arrival "Allie" attracted the attention of Harold and she has held him ever since. She is an ardent rooter at the games and always gives a saccharine send-off to part of the basketball team before every trip. Alice is apt, energetic, and busy and has always faithfully discharged any duty placed upon her by the class. She is a spirited, little morsel and her pleasant nature is denoted by a great big smile. But when she hasn't that grin you may know she has a grouch, and when such is the case then crash, bang, look out. She holds a prominent position on the Girls' Glee Club and well deserves the same, for there is no getting away from the fact that "Allie" can sing and in a very credible manner, too. Her affinity for cutting classes is quite marked, but withal, Alice is a good friend, a good student, and a good, loyal Junior.

"Mealy," "Kate"

"Now, don't do that."

We are indeed fortunate in having with us this refined young personage from the metropolis of Pennsylvania. She has been a very devoted classmate and by her wise council has proven herself a great help to our class. Oftimes when we were about to err and "skip" class, she would chide and admonish us with her motherly instinct until we would change our minds and do that which we should do. Catherine has the distinction of being the only co-ed of our class who has successfully repelled the showers of affections from the masculine sex. Though in her Freshman year she made a good beginning, but quickly regained her peculiar senses and shook off the "evil sloth." She, being the eldest of the three happy sisters of our class, naturally becomes their guardian and is always anxious to have her less careful sisters put on their rubbers before venturing onto the damp ground. Undoubtedly the class of nineteen fifteen will send forth in this person, one, who will achieve success, be it in the schoolroom or in her private kitchen.

"Because."

A veritable blackbird to hear her chatter! This may be your impression of this metropolitan maid, but you have more to learn of her. She is the soul of merriment and laughter, 'tis true, and no matter how large the crowd or what the occasion you can locate her by the hilarious giggle. But Gertrude does not spend all her time in making a "joyful noise" as she is ever willing to sacrifice her time for the benefit of her class or of others. For two years she has been our faithful secretary, and ever since her introduction to college life has taken a prominent part in all activities which would advance the standards of our school. This youngest of our sororial trio has a decided dislike for bluffing, considering the intricacies of Profdom too incomprehensible to be tampered with. Her antipathy for nicknaming is very marked, as nothing will cause her to become more indignant than to whisper "Gertie" in her presence. She often shows her class spirit by adorning herself in blue and white, but her love for these colors is incomparable with her fondness for "Red." So often can we find this merry maiden seated on one of the porch swings in Studentville, that it appears foreordained that ere long she shall be swung into someone's court which will resound for her the charming notes of "Home, Sweet Home."

"With her eyes in flood with laughter."

"Whit"

"By Gee."

Ralph comes from the place "wo sie Deutch schwetzen," and it is not hard to discern that this is his favorite language. To look at the noble visage of this manly youth, one would not think that he would be guilty of anything but study. But study is the last thing of which he would be guilty. While his parental home is but two miles from here, he is so busy that he rarely finds time to even pay his respects to the family. He is the best loafer in the college, and being a jolly good fellow every one welcomes him with an open door. He studies when he is utterly at a loss to know what else to do. He excels in horsemanship and his proficiency in this art has enabled him to thoroughly master the various subjects of his course. Much of his time is given to the opposite sex and many there are who revel in his company. However, there are many redeeming qualities of this tall, slender youth. Possessed with one of the best bass voices around the college, he is indispensable to the Glee Club; and his congenial nature has added the spice to an otherwise dreary trip. "Whit" is also one of the many athletes of whom this class is proud. On the basketball floor he has helped in many a hard fought contest and has won the praise of the student body by the sportsmanlike manner in which he played. The destiny of this good natured soul cannot bring other than good results.

SOPHOMORE POEM

LIFE is real and life is earnest,
So let us never shirk the days;
For he who loafs upon life's pathway
Will surely find it never pays.

For soon we'll launch out on life's journey
As soon as our college days are o'er,
And unless we utilize our time,
We shall find closed Dame Fortune's door.

Though we were green two years ago,
While starting on life's journey;
We soon had the Sophs scared in their shoes
Though they tried to play us dirty.

Now we ourselves are Sophomores bold,
And do rightly claim the honor;
For since we licked those Freshies green,
They cannot even ponder.

But let us strive to do our best,
And as Sophs make our decision;
By helping those who need our aid,
We thus shall gain our intuition.

SOPHOMORE HISTORY

NCE again you read the history for one year of the class of 1916, not as Freshmen but as Sophomores. September the seventeenth found all the class, except three, back to continue their work at dear old S. U. Yes, even before the seventeenth some of our fellows came back to welcome the poor, frightened Freshmen.

So that there would not be any misunderstanding, and to start the little ones aright, the night before school opened six of our boys pasted posters on which were written the rules binding the Freshies.

We began our work with the same zeal that had made us famous during our first year. We met the first week of school and elected officers and decided to get class hats. Since the last of October you can distinguish a Soph not only by his looks but by his hat.

We have been very lenient with the Freshmen from the first as long as they act according to what the rules demand; but one night the poor children, not knowing that it had been decreed by higher authority that no numerals should be painted, sacrificed a night of much needed rest and painted the town. But much to their sorrow by the next morning almost all of their bright, but not artistic, seventeens had disappeared.

As I have said, it was decreed by the upper classmen that no numerals were to be painted, but a tie-up between the two lower classes, instead. This exciting event happened on the twenty-fifth of September and we proudly say that we were the victors by the score of 4-0. The fellows were too tired to go to classes and, of course, the girls sympathized with them, so that as a result no Sophs appeared in the class rooms that day.

Other classes boast of their athletes, but they need not feel as if their respective classes are the only ones that possess such people, for the class of Nineteen-sixteen has just as fine material as any other. We have both football and basketball men numbered among our glorious class.

We have been working all year, quietly but surely, winning the laurels that must in the end crown the class of Nineteen-sixteen, and until next year we bid you a fond farewell.

FRESHMAN POEM

IN the middle of September
In the fall of ten and three,
Is the time we all remember—
We were freshmen, green but free.

We came here not as bluffers
And not as dunces, sure!
But with that sound ability,
The Sophs' green tops to cure.

Oh! yes, we had the spirit;
And it's sticking to us yet;
If things go rough and tumble
We're not inclined to fret.

We're only few in number;
Perhaps a score or so;
That adds not pain to pleasure
For I think we'll surely grow.

Howe'er it be, we've met the class
That boasts of pow'r and fame;
And "took them up" to show our spunk
And not to win a name.

It's sad in some respects, we know,
To take a reprimanding;
But better be an honest Fresh
Than Soph of lower standing.

Some day there'll be a settling,
By One who judges fair;
And certainly no scrapping
As to who'll be boss up there.

Now upward, onward Freshmen,
In all your brightness shine
Until we hear the plaudit,
"Well done, the glory's thine."

S. A. E. M., '17.

FRESHMEN

FRESHMAN HISTORY

SUSQUEHANNA has been looking forward to a greater future ever since the present freshmen class hailed in through its dear old portals. Many of us heretofore thought of college only in our dreams, but on September seventeenth, nineteen hundred thirteen, we awakened to realize those dreams just as night gives way to find daybreak stealing over the lingering shades. Each in turn scrolled his name upon the ancient archives in his own peculiar script, relieved himself of half a summer's savings—which to most of us was a purse racking strain—and finally repaired to the several rooms designated us. We received a hearty welcome from the old students who had gone through the mill and knew the obstructions and disadvantages which come to one beginning a career for himself.

It was but a short time until we became pretty well established and fell into the trend of college life,—organizing our class and transacting all business connected therewith. But lo! as we steal a glance out over the green a blood curdling chill creeps over us; for who is this who comes strutting down across the campus with the air of a kite factory, a bulldog grin on his face and a "mere-sham" pipe dangling at one side of his sneer-puckered lips? Oh, no, we're not so green as that; he's not a professor. The manner of man just described proved to be a sophomore with the shell of verdancy just shaken off his slothful frame. He belonged to the class which had so haughtily advanced a set of rules for the freshmen to obey. Again that rebellious spirit arises within us. Must we cater to the wishes of such a sophisticated, wrecked mass of jaundiced brains! Nay, rather go down to defeat fighting for your rights like a man than to give in with no resistance or opposition.

An official notice from the upper classmen acquainted us with the fact that all members of the class, with the exception of the ladies, must wear green caps with orange buttons. Moreover, that each freshman should appear on Warner field September twenty-fifth arrayed in his fighting togs in order that the customary warfare between the sophs and freshies be waged in the form of a "tie up," which was to take the place of a class scrap. Every freshman began to realize that it was up to him to do his duty; so on the night of September twenty-second, some time between sundown and sunrise the next morning, the numerals one and seven took their places in glistening hues of cardinal red and blue on all the conspicuous places about the college campus. The sophs raved all the next day, renting the air in twain with their curses and threats. At last the great day came and the classes met face to face on the battle grounds, the sophs outnumbering us by four men. The pistol cracked and the fight was on. At the end of fifteen minutes the score was 4-0. Not through skill and cleverness did they win the race, but on account of overpowering numbers. They claim the victory—we claim the honor.

As we are about to close this year's work and give way to those who step into our places, let us, each one, resolve to more perfectly crown old Susquehanna with glory and encircle a halo of '17's around her portals. With this determination in the foreground, dear reader, we bid you adieu until we again appear on the stage of life in a different scene, playing a more important part.

SUB-FRESHMAN PROPHECY

IT was on a bright day in September while walking through a dreary woods that I found myself thinking of my classmates in the Class of 1914. Dreamingly I hastened along until weariness overtook me and I sat down on a stone by the wayside. Slumber soon overcame me, I laid my head upon the grass and slept. Before my eyes came many visions. I imagined myself in a large ocean liner on my way to Europe. During the course of that voyage I chanced to enter the captain's room, and found a familiar figure who was no other than Joseph K. Fisher, one of my classmates.

The scene changed. I found myself in the crowded streets of London. I was on the outer edge of that crowd and soon perceived that the people were listening to a speaker whose voice was quite inaudible to me. I forced my way into the dense crowd and saw on a large platform, erected in the middle of the street, two familiar faces. Approaching nearer I learned that the two most important personages were Christine Z. Schoch and E. L. Rothfuss, who were conducting a revival in London. Again the scene was changed. This time I was in our capital city of Washington, and I entered the Senate Chamber. Just then a young man arose to debate on a proposed Prohibition amendment to the constitution. The tone of his voice was familiar, and I soon learned that Ralph W. Woodruff was United States Senator from Pennsylvania, and had inherited antipathy to the saloon. While on my way home from the Capitol, I happened to meet a stylish young woman who was no other than Marie Moreau, then conducting a large millinery store on Pennsylvania avenue. Being somewhat interested in religious work I attended a Lutheran church while in Washington, and during the morning service I recognized two of my old classmates, Miriam E. Grossman and Dorothy D. Schoch; later I learned they were teachers in the city schools. Again the picture changes and I find myself in a large auditorium at Harvard University. After listening to many inspiring addresses, I saw a little man proceed towards the rostrum and lo and behold, it was my old friend, Harry V. Knorr, who occupied the chair of History. My vision turns south and I find myself passing down Chestnut street in Philadelphia. A large automobile passed whose occupant I recognized as William E. Persing, who was then a surgeon in Jefferson Hospital. The scene again changes, and I find myself in a large tabernacle in Canada. A tall man was speaking just then, and all eyes were fixed upon him. I saw a familiar sight. After the services I pushed my way to the front and commended the speaker, William B. Swartz, on his fine delivery. Soon I find myself in a court room and listening to a lawyer brilliantly pleading for the life of his client. Upon further inquiry I learned that the speaker was Henry Clement. Later I wandered into a county institute. I soon saw a little woman rise and deliver an address. I learned that this person was Inez M. Reid, teacher of Latin and History in the Normal School. Again the scene changes and I enter the Governor's private office at Harrisburg and find my friend, Bertha F. Imler, who was the Governor's private secretary. I had one more vision before I awoke. I was in a large department store in one of our cities, and while purchasing articles at a counter, I saw the business manager giving directions to the clerks. I learned upon inquiry that George K. Swartz was the official. The visions disappeared and I found myself lying upon the cold ground entirely exhausted from the effects of what I had seen.

"Sis"

This piece of humanity came to us in 1913. Before her time our class did not really exist. "Sis" is another studious little girl,—her favorite study being Harmony. She has a good, healthy complexion, and never blushes except when "there's a reason."

"By Golly."

IRENE HARTWELL BAUDER

LESTERSHIRE, N. Y.

"Rene"

It is strange how often in life one comes upon a modest flower nestling in a shady covert beside a babbling brook. "Rene" is not one of this kind, however. The stream has to be quiet while she does the babbling, and she certainly does it with a vengeance. Even the Profs. have to take her in hand occasionally, but that doesn't bother her. She fiddles away night and day, and yet she says "I can't play."

"Well, good night."

SARAH MARGARET DREESE

SELINGSGROVE

"Cutey"

This little girl so bashful and shy joined our class in 1912. Margaret has talent to become a musician, and thinks that she can without practicing, but even at that she is one of the sweetest natured girls in our class.

"Oh, I can't."

RUTH REYNOLDS GRONINGER

PORT ROYAL

"Boofy"

Much to the surprise of all the University students, "Boofy" had a severe attack of cupidic heart trouble from which she has never recovered, and now the case is hopeless. Her voice is as musical as an Aeolian Harp, and its dulcet tones vibrate upon ones nerves with frightful rapidity, producing a soporific rather than an ecstatic effect. Strange faces appear in public places, hence we sometimes see "Boofy" in Chapel.

"Oh, Gee."

EMMA MARY MOYER

REBERSBURG

"Mamie"

We are indeed glad to welcome this sweet tempered little girl into our class. The only fad that she has is studying. In her early childhood she showed signs of great musical talent, which we believe when developed will place her among the musical geniuses of the world. If she lives long enough.

"Oh Heck."

MARY ELIZABETH NEIDIG

SUNBURY

"Peg"

Mary is not the owner of the time honored lamb, for she is quite too young to lead anybody by a string. But this is no drawback, for "Peg" is the best natured girl in our class, and never is the cheering smile absent from her sunny countenance. Mary is one of the little ones of our class, but nevertheless has shown us great vocal ability, so that when her course is completed we believe she will be one of the world's great Prima Donnas.

"Oh goodness."

Organizations

Y. M. C. A.

THERE is a general opinion prevalent among the unknowing that college life is one big, joyous vacation for the student. This is, however, being refuted daily by the activities carried on among college men, especially those which tend to religious uplift and social service.

In practically every university, college, and preparatory school throughout this broad land one will find an organization known as the Young Men's Christian Association. Some of these organizations are doing splendid work, not only among the students of a particular institution, but within recent years broadening out into other fields of activity,—such as teaching English to foreigners; Extension Work in their own neighborhood; members spending their vacations in lumber camps; or in Deputation Team work in various country communities.

Susquehanna is indeed fortunate in fostering such an organization. This body of students has always stood for all that is high and noble, although work may have seemed slow and unprogressive at times. Had it not been for the untiring efforts of the members of the association results would not be so evident. Each year has witnessed increasing results in the work of this body as the members have recognized the call to service.

A retrospect of the past year's work shows many gratifying results. During that administration a One Day Money Campaign was conducted, with surprising results; the largest weekly meeting in the history of the organization was held, while the total attendance at these meetings reached well on toward one thousand; the Association Hall was renovated and made pleasant and attractive; the world-wide "Week of Prayer" was observed, during which more than two hundred and fifty students were in attendance at the different meetings; several successful Bible study classes, taught by students, convened in regular weekly sessions; and numerous prayer groups were instituted.

Let us not, however, think that these few foregoing statistics are an indication that we may now "rest on our oars" for there are great fields of endeavor lying untouched before us. Let us not create a selfish spirit. Every member should resolve to give his best time and thought, during the coming years, to Christian service, and Old Susquehanna will glory in the success that will be ours.

Y. W. C. A.

IN college life the one factor which helps to keep firm our belief in God, which helps in our associations with one another, which stands for pure womanhood and tends, if such is not the case, to lead its members to Christ, is the Young Women's Christian Association.

The past year has been one of great advantage and success for this organization at Susquehanna. One of the many privileges which the association had during the year was that of sending a delegate to the Seventh National Student Volunteer Convention held at Kansas City, Kan. This was accomplished through the sympathy and hearty cooperation of every member.

"Prayer" has been especially emphasized during the year in order that the members may come to recognize and feel its importance in their lives, and to rely upon it at all times, showing their dependence on Him without Whom nothing can be done. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts." Thus they prepare for leadership and for any work to which they may be called.

May the Young Women's Christian Association continue in its work and attain higher and greater success in years to come.

DRAMATICS

DRAMATIC CLUB

NATHAN N. KEENER, Director.

THE aim of this club is to give each member a fair chance to develop a creative power along the lines of character impersonation. The students must study carefully the characters that have been assigned to them, no matter how small the part may be. In this way they can broaden their imagination, develop sentiment, become active instead of passive, thoughtful in place of careless, and overcome that most dreaded of all conditions,—self-consciousness. For by a lack of these characteristics many men have proven failures in the great drama of life. To help the student develop and become master of his own house is the aim of the Susquehanna Dramatic Club.

In Memoriam

FROM March 1, 1913, to March 1, 1914, Susquehanna lost much in the death of alumni and friends. As she contributed largely to their equipment for success in life, and as she rightly rejoices as an Alma Mater in the usefulness and honors of her sons and daughters, so she naturally regrets their departure from this life. This is especially true when death comes, as we think, prematurely, and ruthlessly cuts off all further useful and honorable service to their fellowmen. The honored list includes the following persons:

REV. L. M. DAUBENSPECK, graduated in 1903 and 1906, and died at Greensburg, May 29, 1913.

REV. E. LENIHART, graduated in 1878 and died at York, July 11, 1913. A veteran of the Civil War.

H. M. EMERICK, M.D., died at Milton, August 31, 1913. Prepared at Missionary Institute.

F. J. WAGENSELLER, M.D., graduated in 1876. Died at Selinsgrove, September 5, 1913.

IRA C. SCHOCH, of Selinsgrove, died September 13, 1913. Graduated 1870. He served the school for many years as a trustee, member of the Executive Committee, and treasurer.

MRS. CORA SCHULTZ, nee Schoch, graduated in 1890. Died at Selinsgrove, December 20, 1913.

W. H. ULSH, M.D., graduated in 1888 and died January 21, 1913, at Selinsgrove. Was a Surgeon in the U. S. Navy during the Spanish-American War.

REV. W. A. TROSTLE, graduated, 1887, died at Friesburg, N. J., January 15, 1914.

B. F. WAGENSELLER, M.D., of Selinsgrove, a surgeon during the Civil War and identified for some years with Missionary Institute as physician and lecturer, died December 20, 1913.

Societies

CLIO

“LIVES of individuals are not measured by years, months and days, but by their actions and deeds. He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.”

Life is a mission. Every other definition of life is false and leads those who accept it astray. Religion, science, philosophy, though still at variance upon many points, all agree in this, that every existence is an aim.

It has ever been the aim of Clio to produce men. Her influence is shown in the men who have left her walls and are now out in active service, reflecting great credit upon the society that contributed so much toward their development. They regard the training received here of inestimable value.

Many others, no doubt, look back with remorse when they see the opportunities which they allowed to pass, thinking that the literary society was a place for entertainment rather than training. Instead of doing the work assigned them, they passed it on to others and thus neglected the opportunity for well rounded development.

Talent is not inherent but acquired by practice. The most fluent speakers began as students and in many instances owed their success not so much to their natural endowments as to the persistent effort in one direction. Cicero and Demosthenes studied ceaselessly. Burke, Gladstone and other British orators were close students of classical eloquence; while Lincoln, Clay, Webster and many others renowned in American oratory were indefatigable.

When we notice the progress made by many students as they come here, working faithfully in our ranks for several years and then go out with marked proficiency in their development, we are led to infer that literary work is to the average mind what cultivation and irrigation are to the arid and barren lands. Minds which are as infertile along literary lines as the desert, here find the refreshing streams which cause the ideas to bud and expand to almost infinite development.

Clio has always stood for mental and moral development and incorporated these principles in her motto, “Mentalis Ordo et Moralis Dignitas.” In the sense, the well developed speaker should be a man of sterling character, of lofty purpose, of trained ability. “Let no man who is a sneak try to be an orator,” said Beecher, and he might have added: “Let no man aspire to distinction in public speaking whether in pulpit, on platform or elsewhere, unless he be willing to spend his days and nights in developing all the resources of his mind, voice and body.”

To the student we would say, you need us—we need you. Become affiliated with active society work, for to shirk this responsibility the loss falls most heavily on yourself.

To our Alumni we say, don't forget the Alma Mater that helped make you what you are. Come back to visit us occasionally and see the many improvements we have made which make Clio Hall more beautiful and home-like. You have left us a noble heritage and we are ever striving to maintain those principles upon which Clio is founded. You will find us still on the Firing Line for we know not how to retreat.

GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS HALL

PHILO

ANOTHER year has passed in Philo's history since we last occupied this space in our excellent annual journal. This year has been blessed with many pleasant memories. In our beautiful hall we have assembled every week to develop our social, intellectual, and literary talents. We have heard many eloquent discourses, many amusing jokes, and much melodious music. Philo has truly been blessed, and has maintained the excellent standards set by the fathers.

Never did we manifest a more liberal, unprejudiced spirit, we have combined with all enterprises which might bring success to old S. U. We have united with our sister society in several programs, which joint meetings were undertaken in order to establish a more harmonious relation between Philo and Clio. Not only was this our object, but also to create a greater interest about Susquehanna in literary pursuits. Our fondest hopes were fully realized, and never since the institution was founded did the members of Philo and Clio meet upon a more fraternal basis.

Our Hallowe'en social proved a splendid success, and will long be remembered by those who were present.

Philo will lose heavily by graduation. Many of our present seniors whose faces have been so familiar amongst us for the past four or five years will leave our classic halls to battle with the world and its difficulties. Philo can only wish them complete success, and when they are busily engaged in the world's activities she can only hope that they will take time to recall the pleasant associations we have had together in Philo Hall.

PROHIBITION LEAGUE

THE Prohibition League was unusually active during the year. The League was reorganized early in the fall term, and Danowsky was elected president. A study class on the liquor problem was begun with Dr. Woodruff as its able teacher. The class has an enrollment of about twenty-five, some of the students outside of the organization availing themselves of this special opportunity. Dr. Woodruff represented the League at the Columbus Convention and brought back an interesting account of the events which transpired at that meeting.

This great problem is agitating our nation as never before, and the college men are rallying to the support of the anti-liquor forces. Susquehanna has always taken an active part in this fight, and the men who are devoting their time to the study of the problem should stand in the forefront of the victorious anti-liquor forces a few years hence.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

SOON after the opening of the Fall term the Girls' Glee Club was re-organized with a membership of eighteen. Since that time some girls have dropped out and some new ones have been added, so that at the present time the club consists of sixteen members.

Great progress has been made by the club this year in successfully giving several public concerts in neighboring towns. This has done much to advertise Susquehanna, especially the Conservatory of Music. If we shall be known we must get out and show other people that we can do something.

Miss Ethel Irene Brown, as director, has been instrumental in making the club a success, and as such deserves great credit for her faithful and efficient work in directing these young daughters of Orpheus.

Great achievements can be expected of the club in the future, if it continues to develop as it has done this year.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

GLEE CLUB

FOR eighteen consecutive years, with few exceptions, Susquehanna University has been represented by her college Glee Club. Perhaps these clubs gain more for an institution in the way of support and patronage than any other organization in college life. However, we feel safe in saying that Susquehanna has never sent out a better club than the one which represented her this year.

The University Glee Club was organized for the season 1913-14, electing Prof. Matthew Lundquist of the Conservatory of Music as Director; J. Theodore Lundquist and Prof. C. M. Fry as vocal and violin soloists, with W. E. Swoope as reader. These men deserve special praise for the excellence of their work. Many times they were encoored by enthusiastic audiences, showing that their talent and ability was greatly appreciated.

To be manager of any troupe or club, not employed by a Lyceum Bureau, is a task of no little concern and, therefore, A. M. Lutton, as manager, deserves much credit for his untiring efforts in behalf of this organization.

Without a doubt, the three weeks tour through the central and western parts of Pennsylvania during the Christmas holidays was the most successful taken by our Glee Club. Concerts were given to large and enthusiastic audiences at Milheim, Bellefonte, Tyrone, Altoona, Johnstown, Blairsville, Homer City, Punxsutawney, Brookville, DuBois, Clearfield, Philipsburg, Jersey Shore and Williamsport.

From the second trip the club returned with good reports, having been welcomed by large audiences at Millersburg, Harrisburg, Middletown, Elizabethtown, Manheim, Lititz, Ephrata, Schuylkill Haven, Mahanoy City, Ashland and Shamokin.

FEEELING the necessity of making Susquehanna University better known to the outside world, the Athletic Association appointed a Press Club consisting of five members. The club has been unusually active, reporting all the important events to the various newspapers of the state. This work needs to be encouraged as it is an excellent means of securing and maintaining for Susquehanna its deserved and enviable reputation.

ATHLETICS

A. B. DUNN
Physical Director

J. MARTIN KELCHNER
Coach

A NEW era is opening to Susquehanna in Athletics. Ever since the founding of the institution we have endeavored to adhere to the old adage, "A sound mind in a sound body," realizing that there must be a proper balance between the intellectual and the physical development if the individual would launch forth upon life's voyage properly equipped to enter the struggle for existence.

For the last half century Susquehanna has held her own among institutions of an equal standing in the realm of athletics. Indeed, quite frequently she has surpassed and outclassed much larger institutions in physical contests. But within the past year a new spirit along the line of athletics has been awakened. Susquehanna has realized that, while the primary and fundamental object of athletics is to develop the student into a strong, sturdy, robust type of man and in this way supplement the mental training which he derives from his study, yet their usefulness as an advertising medium must not be overlooked. A careful examination will readily reveal the fact that our increase and decrease in numbers has run hand in hand with our corresponding fluctuation in athletic prominence. There seems to be a sort of psychology of the crowd which forbids, or at least deters an individual from affiliating himself with an institution whose athletics are not on a fairly good plane.

Therefore, realizing that better athletics means a better Susquehanna we have labored diligently for the materialization of our many desires. Football has been reinstated, basketball has advanced one step nearer perfection, a track team is being organized, while the prospects for a much-improved baseball team are unusually brilliant.

But such results cannot be brought about without some transforming agent. For her rise in athletics Susquehanna is indebted to her new physical director, A. B. Dunn, who came to us in the fall of 1913 with a state-wide reputation. Since that time he has been zealous in stimulating interest in all branches of recreation and undoubtedly will aid us materially in solving our athletic problem. Indeed, fortune smiled doubly upon us at the beginning of this year. Along with our physical director came a new coach, J. Martin Kelchner, who has already proved himself unusually capable as a leader of men. He possesses the ability to transfer "pep" and enthusiasm to his players to an extent seldom equalled, and in this way has already effected a marked improvement in Susquehanna's athletics.

In short, we believe that Susquehanna is destined to advance in the educational world in the near future, and that that advancement will to a great extent be due to our improved athletics.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

FOOTBALL REVIEW

Season 1913

THE LANTHORN with greatest enthusiasm welcomes football back to the athletics of Susquehanna. Last fall saw Warner field again a place of action when football season came around. About forty men responded to the first call of Coach Kelchner for candidates. Our supply of uniforms and football regalia was rather ancient and limited, but what the fellows lacked along the line of armor plate they made up for by having lots of real "pep".

It was not long until our squad began to assume something of a definite shape and gradually a fast hard fighting eleven was whipped into shape. It must be remembered that but few of our contestants for a place on the team had any former knowledge of the game whatever and they could not profit by any experience of their own.

An excellent schedule had been arranged by Manager Kimports, but owing to the lack of material and ready funds on the part of the association it was necessary for him to cancel his entire season. Games, however, were secured with a few teams from surrounding towns. Buraham Y. M. C. A. twice met defeat by the wearers of the Orange and Maroon. Susquehanna played with such vim and fighting spirit that it would have done them credit had they been seasoned and experienced players.

The only real test of the year came when our fellows journeyed to Albright and there administered to the lovers of the sauer-kraut the surprise of their lives by holding them to a 20-0 score. Susquehanna kept her heavier opponents on the jump from the first blast of the whistle until time was called. Every man on the team played an excellent game and displayed such fighting ability that would have surely brought victory had they been more experienced.

"Red" Swoope, who played a hard consistent game at fullback this fall, was chosen to captain the team through next year's season. "Red" is a fighter and we know that he will be a captain of whom his men can well be proud. All of the old men are expected to return to college next fall and some likely new material is promised us. With such a nucleus to work upon Coach Kelchner should have no trouble in building up a team which will put Susquehanna back upon the football map. We await with great expectations and high hopes for the coming of next September, when the old gridiron, made famous by many hard fought victories in the past, will be awakened from its long sleep by the joyful sound of the booted pigskin and the trampling of cleated feet upon the sod.

We, the student body, are backing the revival of this true sport with the best that we can give and we extend to Coach Kelchner and his men the hope that next fall will see a team upon the field which will bring unfading glory and renown to our Alma Mater, Susquehanna.

BASEBALL REVIEW

Season 1913

THE baseball candidates were handicapped by the absence of a coach during the early part of the season. Stoy Spangler, whose loyal services to the Orange and Maroon on the diamond will long be remembered, was compelled to resign his position as coach because of pressing ministerial duties, and the team was compelled to coach itself for several weeks. The Athletic Board was fortunate in getting the services of "Jake" Boyer, the agile and heady catcher who played on the Susquehanna nine during the two previous seasons. Under the instruction of Coach Boyer the team did credit to itself in every game.

The first game scheduled with Albright, April 11, was called off on account of bad weather. Gettysburg defeated us here on April 17 by the close score of 1-0. Mt. St. Mary's won a close game from us at Emmittsburg by the score of 5-3 on April 25, but Susquehanna defeated her old rival, Gettysburg, the next day by the score of 4-0. At Gettysburg the boys played gilt-edged ball and at no time was the game in danger. Peters was invincible at all times, his opponents only getting four scratch hits from the little spit-ball artist. Eddie Plank, the great southpaw, came up from Philadelphia to witness the defeat of his Alma Mater, and commented very favorably on Susquehanna's fast aggregation. On May 2, Lock Haven C. S. N. S. fell a victim to the slugging Orange and Maroon batsmen by the score of 12-4 at Selinsgrove. Bucknell played here on May 8 and came off victorious by the score of 7-3. Peters was greatly handicapped by a strong western wind accompanied by a little rain which caused him to lose control of the sphere, the Bucknell boys taking advantage of the opportunity thus afforded by the inclement weather.

Susquehanna lost to Albright at Myerstown on May 15 by the score of 4-3. The score should have been a tie, 3-3, but on account of the erratic umpiring of a paid official who holds his position by virtue of the good-will of the Albright students, Albright was able to score two runs on a passed ball from Peters to Catcher Middlesworth.

On May 29 Susquehanna redeemed herself by winning from C. S. N. S. at Lock Haven by the score of 4-2, but lost to Juniata the next day by the score of 4-1. Juniata was taken into camp here on May 31 by the score of 5-10, and Susquehanna defeated the Alumni by the score of 4-2.

Considering the handicaps due to the absence of a coach for several weeks, and rainy weather, the Susquehanna boys ably represented their college on the diamond. Captain Smith received the hearty co-operation of the entire team whose only desire was the glory of the Orange and Maroon.

BASKETBALL REVIEW

Season 1913-14

CAPT. FOLLMER

hard, but were unable to adapt themselves to the "strange" rules.

The second league game with Gettysburg on January 29 was won by the score of 35-30. Playing was fast and exciting and the game closely contested. Middlesworth starred, scoring twenty-five of the team's points. His wonderful foul throwing—caging twenty-one goals out of twenty-five tries—practically won the game for the Orange and Maroon. Peters showed ability in this game.

The following week the team left on a two day trip, which took in Gettysburg, where we lost, 59-30, and Mt. St. Mary's, where we were defeated, 36-24.

On February 10 our team completely outclassed Juniata. Playing a whirlwind game and with the fast dribbling and clever passing swept the visitors off their feet. Swoope, Capt. Follmer, Lenhart and Middlesworth played well on the offence, each securing not less than five goals.

Our next league game with Bucknell resulted in an easy victory for Susquehanna. The home team displayed great form and ran away with Bucknell

THE opening game of the season was played January 14 with Lebanon Valley. Susquehanna won an easy victory over the visitors by the score of 35-11. Captain Follmer and Young, a new man, showed excellent form, each securing six goals from the field.

On January 16 the team played Delaware at Newark and won, 26-14. The following night Muhlenburg was played and defeated by the score of 33-21. In both these games the team kept a whirlwind pace, while their guarding was almost perfect, allowing only eight field goals to be scored against them.

January 23 witnessed the first intercollegiate league game with Bucknell on their floor. The game was exciting from start to finish. When the smoke cleared away Bucknell was proclaimed the victor, 25-20. Our team fought from the start, the game ending with the score of 41-15, in our favor. Capt. Follmer, Swoope, and "Miggs" starred in shooting. Harkins played a great game on the defence. Swoope's floor work was spectacular.

On February 20 we were defeated by Lebanon Valley, 26-16. The game was hard fought, but on a floor half as large as our own the team felt a trifle out of place and were not permitted to display their accustomed speed and true merit.

The following night Albright was played on their floor in a league game. In the first half the outcome was uncertain, but in the second half our team went to pieces and Albright won by the score of 54-27.

The game with Albright here on February 27 resulted in a victory for the visitors. The home team was greatly weakened by the absence of Captain Follmer, who was unable to play on account of sickness. Every man put up a game fight, but were unable to check the scoring of the visitors, especially the work of Benfer, who caged most of their points. "Miggs" kept up his fine record from the foul line.

March 6, with a badly crippled and patched up team, we lost to Juniata on their floor by 40-37.

The closing game of the season was played with Muhlenburg on our floor, when, in one of the fastest games of the year we defeated them by the score of 39-21. In this contest the team was also crippled, but nevertheless played together in first class form.

Although every man on the team played star ball yet a great deal of the credit for the successful season is due the efficient, persistent, and first class drilling by Coach Kelchner.

SPARKS FROM EDUCATORS

FOLLOWING are the replies received from college presidents to whom the editor of the LANTHORN wrote and requested their opinion as to: "Benefits derived in the battle of life from a college education."

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

Chicago

President's Office

Editor THE LANTHORN,
Selinsgrove, Penna.

October 23, 1913.

Dear Sir: A college course may be worth while even if it never gives a financial profit. There are other assets. The college opens avenues to many fields of culture and of achievement. It is a poor fellow who gets through college without having caught something of the spirit of poetry and some knowledge of it, who has not read some of the great books; and gathered some inspiration from the sciences and scientists; who has not learned to know some of the great men of all times; who has not had profit from four years spent under high-minded teachers and fellow students of pure and valiant adventure. The college man puts in four years as part of a community, the most unselfish, high-minded and wholesome to be found in American life. The man who can live through the college years with college boys and not be the better for it has either been surprisingly unfortunate in the selection of his college or is very unresponsive to good influences. These years will have accustomed him to the vital acceptance of service as the great thing in life; they will have given him many abiding friendships with other men of fine mold, and they will have endowed him for life with a few of those closest friendships—so seldom made after the time of youth—which are of abiding value as life's best treasures.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) A. W. HARRIS.

JOHN B. STETSON UNIVERSITY

DeLand, Florida

President's Office

Editor LANTHORN,
Selinsgrove, Pa.

October 28, 1913.

Dear Sir: The purpose of education, as I understand it, is to develop power; incidentally it imparts much useful information. A good many regard information or knowledge as the sole end of education. I do not. I look on it merely as incidental to the main thing, which is the development of individual capacity. The greatest benefit of a college education is to bring out a person's power of concentration, his initiative, self-reliance, originality, and to discipline to the point of effective usefulness his better intellectual and moral abilities.

Very respectfully yours,

(Signed) LINCOLN HULLEY.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Founded by John D. Rockefeller

Office of the President

Editor LANTHORN

Selinsgrove, Pa.

Chicago, October 29, 1913.

Dear Sir: Your favor of the 20th inst. is received. The "benefits to be derived in the battle of life from a college education" should be comprised mainly in being trained to think, in having enough knowledge to know where to find out things that one desires to know, and enough self-control to do what is honest in the face of the temptation to do something else.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) HENRY PRATT JUDSON.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH

Office of the Chancellor

Editor THE LANTHORN

Selinsgrove, Penna.

November 28, 1913.

My Dear Sir: The college is a character forming institution, and since its aim is to provide for the wants of the individual, it gives to youth vision, and adds to the zest of life.

The daily routine of college life forms in the real college man a habit of persistent application to the matter in hand—a habit which will prove of inestimable value throughout life. Thus the college man can be depended upon to "see the thing through," whatever may be his chosen line of work.

The college develops the clear thinker—the thoughtful worker. He has learned to form his own opinions of persons, of conditions, of possibilities, of opportunities. It is scarcely necessary to point out wherein lie his advantages in this respect.

The college reveals to a man those latent possibilities and powers within himself of which he was formerly unaware, awakens and develops these powers, and finally instils in the man a sense of his responsibility to society, because of the possession of these powers.

Because of long possessed habits of thought, the college man quickly grasps the entire situation, to cull out the unimportant from the essential, and to form without hesitation logical conclusions from given premises.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) S. B. McCORMICK.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE

President's Office

Editor LANTHORN,

Selinsgrove, Penna.

October 22, 1913.

Dear Sir: The discipline arising from systematic work, done at fixed hours, through organized effort and subservient to authority and direction is worth four years of any man's life.

Respectfully,

(Signed) EDWIN ERLE SPARKS.

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

Tucson, Arizona

President's Office

Editor THE LANTHORN,
Selinsgrove, Penna.

October 24, 1913.

Dear Sir: Capacity to adjust one's self to various demands and situations; general outlook as well as capacity for development of details; acquaintance with men and capacity to look on the human side of problems and to secure the co-operation of other men; appreciation of the big things as big, the small things as small; capacity to pursue intelligently an avocation and so secure mental relaxation.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) ARTHUR H. WILDE.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE

Brunswick, Maine

Editor LANTHORN
Selinsgrove, Pa.

October 23, 1913.

Dear Sir: The offer of the college is to be at home in all lands and all ages; to count Nature a familiar acquaintance, and Art an intimate friend; to gain a standard for the appreciation of other men's works and the criticism of your own; to carry the keys of the world's library in your pocket, and feel its resources behind you in whatever task you undertake; to make hosts of friends among the men of your own age who are to be leaders in all walks of life; to lose yourself in generous enthusiasms and co-operate with others for common ends; to learn manners from students who are gentlemen, and form character under professors who are Christians; this is the offer of the college for four of the best years of your life.

Very respectfully,

(Signed) WILLIAM DEWITT HYDE.

THE TUSKEGEE NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE

Tuskegee Institute, Alabama

Editor THE LANTHORN
Selinsgrove, Pa.

October 25, 1913.

Dear Sir: To a large extent the success of negro education in the South depends upon the character of the individual teacher and the spirit in which he or she undertakes the work. It is important to everyone that we should have in every Southern community well trained, enterprising, thrifty, and honest negro business men who will serve as examples to other members of their race. If one part of the community performs its work and fulfills its obligations in a slipshod careless way the whole community will feel the effects. For this reason it is important to everyone that we should have in every Southern community well trained, enterprising, thrifty, and honest negro business men who will serve as examples to other members of their race.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) BOOKER T. WASHINGTON.

CAMPUS SNOW SCENES

SENIOR SLAPS

BASTIAN—Spare your breath to cool your broth. A stude of the first water.

BOYER—Talking and eloquence are not the same. A heady man with the racquet.

DITZLER—The Time, Place, and the Girl. Aristotle come to life again.

KINPORTS—Christian manhood as developed by the Y. M. C. A. "Oh, he has witchcraft in his eyes and tongue."

LENHART—Smile, lad, it won't hurt you. "'Tis said that absence conquers love."

LISTON—Beauty is not my plea. "I'll do anything but work."

MCCORMICK—Cheer up, Rose, some say there is no hell. "Lest men suspect your tale untrue, keep probability in view."

MILLER—Noted for silence and lack of flesh. "A man of an unbounded stomach."

PETERS—"These little things are great to a little man." Glorious in a pipe, when tipped with amber, mellow, rich, and ripe.

RINE—Pictures must not be made too picturesque. "Some Cupid kills with arrows, some with traps."

RESSLER—A lover of dignity and stale jokes. "Woman's at best a contradiction still."

SHOPE—Lend me your eyes and ears. "Physician, thou art surely accounted a wonderful healer."

SMITH—One part eloquence; two parts Glee Club; three parts (B)aseball (S)uff. "All kinds of arguments and questions deep."

STEELE—Lend me your mirror until I fix my hair. "A merry heart doeth good like medicine."

STREAMER—The world knows nothing of its greatest men. "Red as a rose is he."

STYER—Say, boys, it's great to have a pull. "I would rather study my books than dance to the sweetest music."

SOPHOMORE SULPHURETTES

BOLIG—Caesar, too, had a Roman nose. "I would like to conquer the masculine world."

BROWN—"I am so fresh, the new green blades of grass,
Turn pale in envy as I pass."

DOLBEER—"Would that God the giftie gie them, to see as I do see myself."
All prohibition but the name.

FEEMAN—Ex nihil, nihil fit.

FETTEROLF—Not like other "Kids" you often see.

FREY—There he is, my friends, an honest man and true.

GROSSMAN—"I was not made for courts or great affairs,
I pay my debts, believe, and say my prayers."

HARMON—Often the cock loft is empty in those whom nature has made many stories high.

HIMES—"Full well he laughed with wondrous glee at all his jokes."
Copyrighted Arizona stories.

KELLER—A mischief maker from his birth.

KEAMMERER—Like spring garlic, strong and fresh.

KLASE—Write an epitaph on my back and I'll pass for a tombstone.

LUTTON—A lion among ladies is a most dreadful thing.

MCCORMICK—"How could one so small with men have luck,
Built close to the ground on the plan of a duck?"

MOHN—God made him, therefore, let him pass as a man.

NICHOLS—Always in haste, but never in a hurry.

RINE—Failures are the stepping stones to success. His success is assured.

SCHADEL—"I was going to say, I went the street down for exercise, therefore, I got 26 in Livy."

SWOOPE—Many a joke has he. "Great wits are sure to madness near allied."

WAGNER—A seeker of knowledge. A minister's daughter.

WEAVER—This is the short of it.

FRESHMEN FROSTS

BULICK—What can't be cured must be endured.

CRESSMAN—Although her hair is red it does not burn her hat.

DRUMM—The Fair Co-ed of the Freshman Class.

EVANS—This is not the fault of Nature.

FASOLD—Chase it, boys, it's candy.

FISHER—Plays fullback on the scrubs and way back in his classes.

FURST—Don't let the child suffer, bring him his toys and his little spoon.

HERMAN—Things are not always what they seem.

HUNTINGTON—Holds his head up like a hen drinking water.

KLEPFER—A hand is pushed into a coat and is brought forth holding a package of tobacco (occasionally), and then "give me a paper."

MOYER, C.—An unknown quantity.

MOYER, M.—A busy bee doing nothing.

MOHN—A wery vigorous dewourer of wictuals.

PHILLIPS—Walks like a cow in the gutter.

ROCKEFELLER—A poor ad. for dad's business.

SCHOCH—We don't see him any longer. Well, he's long enough.

SCHULTZ—The smile you can't forget.

WALKER—Marriage is not a failure.

WALKENSHAW—The faculty will long remember what little he did here.

WENTZEL—No one knows how important I feel.

MORNING MILK SECURES A GREAT ARTICLE

"Red" Streamer has just sent us a 10,000 word article proving that it is impossible that a woman could have a serpent's tongue, or why did Nellie leave home? Owing to our limited circulation and the fact that we carry so little advertising, we cannot afford to publish the entire article in a single number, and it will therefore be printed in these columns serially, one word to each issue. The first word is "I". For next installment see next issue of "The Morning Milk."

BLOOD-CURDLING FIGHT IN COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

The ink called the blotter an old soak, then the fight started. The ruler got her foot into it inch by inch, and, instead of helping her out, the stamps stuck to the envelopes and let the pen-holder. The keys were in a bunch, so the pencil lead them away and let the paper weight. At this stage of the fray the paper knife stepped in, cut out the fight, and silence reigned supreme.

LOCALS AND GOSSIP

After Elmer Tibbits Liston got through his argument with the bulldog at Euphema Brown's house where he called, his dress coat had been made over into a Tuxedo.

Ame Hanks Walker went to work at his usual occupation, that of firing the biler at the steam plant, and forgot to take off his celluloid collar. Funeral Wednesday at 2 P. M. Please omit flowers.

Grandma Guss says she used to have a good many warm friends, and if they all went where she thinks they did, they are still warm.

Prof. Keener says the press agent for "Salome" has certainly got a snap. All he has to do to describe his show is to tell the naked truth.

Page One Fifty-four

Miss Annabel Frink Barry got so scared at a burglar that her hair turned white, which is quite remarkable, as her hair was hangin' on a hoop up over the bureau.

Elmer Jenkins Ditzler has been down o New York and he saw "The Fortune Hunter," which, he says, is a good show and a good take-off, but the best take-off he ever saw was a show called "Salome."

Miss Sara Simpkins Shields has got a new watered silk dress, and the girls are all afraid she will catch her death of cold goin' around this kind of weather with a damp thing like that on.

Hard times have struck Hiram Reish, and he says if he should run his meal ticket through a pianola now it would play a darn lively tune.

THE FORAM

(QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS DEPT.)

How can I remove a wart from the back of my neck? ELDER J. HIMES.

Answer: Do not attempt to remove it. You can use same for punching holes in doughnuts or for a push button when riding in a trolley car. Also may be used for a collar button. If it becomes too long split it and use for suspenders.

What do you think of prunes for supper? SISTER RINE.

Answer: Doesn't matter what we think, we get them anyway.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Carbolic acid should never be used in cooking. It is not conducive to good health and imparts a never-to-be-forgotten flavor.

How to mend socks:—Use a safety-pin if the hole is large: if the hole is small wait until it is large and proceed as above.

Bon Ami and Pearline are not breakfast foods and should not be served as such.

If you want to boil eggs do not take the shells off.

SKEPTIC:—

There is no doubt that Homer wrote the Iliad. Prof. Allison saw him do it.

PROF. FAUST:—

GIRLS' ROOMS

A TYPICAL FACULTY MEETING

PRESIDENT AIKENS: "Gentlemen, we have a considerable amount of business to transact at our meeting today. What is the first subject for consideration?"

PROF. KEENER (just coming in): "As this is the first meeting that I have attended since 1910 I request that the secretary read the minutes of the past 152 meetings." (Motion ruled out.)

PROF. WOODRUFF: "I wish to bring before the faculty the matter of adopting the honor system in examinations. Many colleges are taking this new step."

DR. FLOYD: "We do things according to conventional customs here. The same yesterday, today, and forever."

PROF. ALLISON: "College students should be treated like men. Treat a man like a fool and he will be a fool."

PROF. FOLLMER: "Yes, yes, yes, the fools are not all dead yet. We have some big ones in our theological department."

DR. MANHART: "Now, I am very greatly grieved that you should make such a statement about this beloved department of our Christian institution."

PRESIDENT AIKENS (tapping on desk with his pencil): "Now, now we must have order. Keep in mind where you are."

PROF. WOODRUFF: "There is a tendency toward ambiguity, and, furthermore, considerable discrepancy, even tending towards fallacious misrepresentation in some of the statements presented in this discussion. We must prudently bear in mind the august and dignified solemnity that should prevail in these faculty meetings. With due precision and precaution we must proceed, remembering the proverb, 'who shall decide when doctors disagree?'"

PROF. ALLISON: "Well, I have no faith in the honor system for examinations. The Bull Moose party has no regard for an honor system and, therefore, I haven't, either."

PRESIDENT AIKENS: "Now, the remarks are well taken, and we shall have further complaints presented."

PROF. WOODRUFF: "As an experiment to test the efficiency of the honor system I have allowed my classes to use their own discretion concerning the adoption of this plan in their examinations. I find that it succeeded admirably in the Junior class, but I met some difficulty with the lower classes. I candidly believe that college men should be allowed to show that they can be trusted. How can we more suitably inculcate an inherent tendency to immovably hold to justifiable and commendable traits of integrity and probity than to unceasingly cultivate attainment in this direction, so that finally the country will have reached such a degree of perfection that universal harmony will result?"

PROF. BRUNGART: "Laying aside the oratory, I wish to state that at present we are not in a position to have this system established."

PRESIDENT AIKENS (tapping pencil on desk): "Tut, tut, I see that we are no farther than when we began, so we will drop the matter entirely."

PROF. FOLLMER: "I request that Prof. Keener cease smoking that cigar during the meeting as the noise disturbs my nervous system entirely too much."

PRESIDENT AIKENS: "Now, Prof. Keener, I don't want you smoking those nasty cigars in this room. As it is near the end of the term we had better make out the grades for the students. Prof. Allison you begin."

PROF. ALLISON: "Well, you see, here is Lauver and Gross, they don't take Greek under me, so I will give them each 80 in History, and Shannon and Kline I'll mark them each 95, you see."

PROF. BRUNGART: "Do you believe that is a fair way to mark the grades? I think they ought not be marked until the student has taken the examinations."

PROF. ALLISON: "Well, you see I do this because history teaches that in the ninth century the University of Bologna was conducted—"

PRESIDENT AIKENS: "Now, now, we can't have so much confusion. Remember this is a faculty meeting. I suggest that each professor shall close his eyes and point with a pencil on his roll book, then look and see whose name he touched. Give the first 98, the next, 85, the next 94, next 80, and so on."

DR. FISHER: "President Aikens, this has been sufficient for me, sufficient. May I be excused from the room?"

DR. MANHART: "Now, I want you to mark all the grades 10 per cent. more for those who are going to study for the gospel ministry. It makes their report look better at Synod. That is the way Benjamin Kurtz and our forefathers all did."

PROF. ALLISON: "Well, the first two that I pointed to are Christine Schmuck and Middlesworth. That means 98 for the former and 85 for the latter."

PROF. FOLLMER: "Now, of course, Miss Schmuck is not going to take up theology, so just give her 85 and transfer her 98 to Middlesworth. Synod doesn't like low marks on the reports."

PRESIDENT AIKENS (in thoughtful mood): "Yes, now that just reminds me, there was a new Cuban came in today and I must have that good bed taken out of Mr. Grossman's room and given to Mr. Sphagheti, and then we can give the old bed to Mr. Grossman."

DR. FLOYD: "As it is getting late in the a-afternoon I will a-a-sk to leave the room and depa-a-rt for my residence."

PROF. WOODRUFF: "I have here 12 demerits against Victor Miller for sleeping in class. What shall be done about the matter?"

PRESIDENT AIKENS: "Well, now, now Victor is a Synodical aid student, so just give those 12 demerits to Mr. Harkins. He is one of the few who pays his bills, but, of course, we must look out for our ministerial boys first. I might also add that I induced a fine layman to give several nice big beds and mattresses to the institution. We will give those to our theological boys and move the old worn-out beds over for some of the upper classmen in college."

PROF. KEENER: "Don't you think, gentlemen, that it is unnecessary to talk about what you are going to do with the new beds and so forth? Because the college students wouldn't expect to get them. They have found out long ago that the fellow who comes here and pays his bills regularly always comes out at the little end of the horn in general, and that all the nice room furnishings, etc., go to the charity students, half of whom never pay their bills anyway."

PRESIDENT AIKENS: "Now, now, we always aim to develop that higher type of manhood and womanhood, but there are little irregularitites that come into college life at times that are confusing."

Mr. Horton (pounding on door): "Well, now, here you men are at 6 o'clock burning up all this electric current. Our electric bills are so high that you will have to do away with these meetings during the winter when so much light is needed. (Meeting adjourned until spring term when the days are longer and no light will be needed.)

Two seniors in different departments nearly come to blows in dining room. "Prexy" talks in Y. M. C. A. meeting. All back-sliders and hypocrites out. Danowsky takes front seat.

November 12. Swartz rough-housed. Shannon dislocates shoulder in football scrimmage.

November 13. Girls solicit mending from the boys, socks a specialty. Abe's lucky day. He gets to class on time. Prof. Fry is noticed in chapel.

November 14. Rough Smith looks for new girl in dining room. Dr. Floyd prays in chapel. Same as October 13th.

November 15. "Red" Streamer says he can crow now, for he saw a man smaller than himself. Scrubs are beat up at Northumberland. Spectators join in the game,—of beating up.

November 16. Shannon with one arm in a sling and Young with a bum ankle call on their Sunbury friends. Rain and church. Church and rain.

"Doc"

November 17. First number on Artist course. Piano recital by Heinrich Pfitzner. "Prexy" attends a meeting at Harrisburg of the Pennsylvania College Presidents, who decide that it is not permissible to give Physics in the Freshman year.

November 18. Prof. Lundquist attends Grand Opera at Philadelphia. Porched girls again free, sentence of stern administratrix of S. U. having expired. "Cy" Ard is ducked while leading the Scrub Glee Club.

November 19. "Snooky" Rayman patiently awaits the appearance of her fifteen suitors. None appear. Stumpf again resumes campus. Chemistry class use new gas plant for first time. Knob Country Dramatic Club make debut at Bloomsburg.

November 20. Last night of football practice. "Rough" becomes enraged because fellows continue singing when he wishes to sleep. He never makes any noise in the halls. What? New gas plant on the job, Press Club resign.

November 21. "Miggs" fails in bluffing dates in History class. Beautiful day. Nature's songsters render selections. LANTHORN staff have "weakly" meeting.

November 22. Persing, from force of habit, waddles over in front of girls' dorm, but Harkins reminds him that Susie has gone home. Registrar Horton shows his love for the romantic. His wife being away he takes in the movies at Simbury in the evening, but unfortunately tarries too long and comes home in a taxi. Some of the girls go hiking. Fellows repulsed by Big Squeeze at dorm, when they attempt to take girls to movies.

November 23. Coach Kelchner, Young, and Nichols arrive from a night spent in Sydertown. Girls have feed in kitchen and disturb peace of cook. Gross attends church.

November 24. Miss Rayman captures sixteenth suitor. Founder's day. Fellows display nobby banners. Distinguished men present (?) to speak. Oratorio rendered under direction of Dean Lundquist. "Cy" Ard and Prof. Keener bring lady friends to breakfast to save expense.

November 25. Prexy lectures the Juniors for skipping class. Pfeil informs theologists that he is the man of his room. Reish threatens to commit a great crime. Fitzgerald makes unkind remarks about the apple sauce.

November 26. Students beat it for home. Many turkey dinners in sight. Some remain for the vacation. Theologists arraigned for "hooking" Pfeil.

November 27. Many turkey dinners inside. Many and prolonged "social functions" are held by the stay-over students. Parlors of Seibert Hall decorated with costly trimmings, giving the effect of an Oriental Harem.

November 28. Rain and snow. Aesthetic spooning. Sensational find of a precautionary measure.

November 29. Country walks. More talk about great discovery of yesterday. Whose was it?

November 30. Same as yesterday.

DECEMBER

December 1. Miss Stumpf's friend leaves after a six days' stay. Students return. Sensational revelation of Thanksgiving happenings. Basketball practice begins. Kurtz receives an unexpected bath after he retires. Sophs' hats appear. They can now be distinguished from preps.

December 2. Students still coming in. "Cy" Ard makes third successive brilliant recitation in Psychology. Danowsky, Streamer and Lenhart, unfamiliar faces in Y. M. C. A., presumably desirous of making a good impression on the speaker and members of our sister association, were observed seated on the front seat at the joint meeting of the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. Dr. Woodruff gave account of the anti-liquor convention held at Columbus, Ohio.

YORK CO. FEED

December 3. Abe Miller sits on pin in History. Prof. in History asks Ard whether he is interested in architecture. "Cy" replies that he is interested to a great extent in porches and porchings.

December 4. Harkins suffering from a sprained ankle and Kinports from a torn ligament send their respects instead of taking campus. Kniseley attends institute at Middleburg in interest of his fiance.

December 5. Watts attends revival where he is mistaken for a rough-neck. "Prexy" acquires a new disease which he announces in class room.

December 6. Scrubs defeat Sunbury here, 19-16. Swoope's mother and sisters arrive. Marie is well pleased. Irvin runs off from the crowd to take campus. Keanmerer gets rid of some of his ever abundant freshness in the halls.

December 7. A number of S. U. incorrigibles attend M. E. revival. Bill Swartz is conspicuous. Boys are allowed to fuss the girls in the parlor. Miss Barry absent.

December 8. Juniors get 106 questions in Psychology. Abe snores in class. Pete makes one of his innumerable vows to quit smoking. Dr. Woodruff reading "Hamlet"—"He took me by the waist and held me hard."

December 9. Danosk sits up all night typewriting thesis for Dr. Jack. Y. M. C. A. Lutton speaks, as usual.

December 10. Panoramic picture of institution taken. Sophs congregate in a unit so as to make an impression. "Mabel" Kline drops out of Girls' Glee Club. Company too fast.

December 11. Student recital. Slim makes her debut. A howling success. Horrible discovery! "Gum Shoe" Bill Swartz steals down to gym at midnight and catches Garnes taking a bath. Student body is horrified at the revelation.

December 12. Girls' Glee Club goes to Freeburg. Too much moon. Bucknell Academy defeats Scrubs. Prof. Faust walks the streets of Freeburg for recreation before going to recital.

December 13. Danowsky says grace in dining room. Lutton and Imler take campus for a few minutes. Several are ordered from commercial department,—yes they had girls.

December 14. Proctor Danowsk attends church. Boys break quiet hour when several Sunbury dreams appear on campus.

December 15. Theologs smoke out Pfeil. Baby Lundquist beams forth from his new vantage point—a high chair. Exams begin. Pony and horse races.

December 16. Horse and pony races.

December 17. Students depart for home. Merry Christmas.

WINTER TERM

JANUARY

January 7. All students back. Much changing of rooms. Abe Miller again causes train to be late. Reish lays in winter supply of Mail Pouch.

January 8. Fellows attend Stough meeting in Sunbury. Classes begin. "Prexy" asks Streamer if he wants to run the institution. Installation of new professor in theology.

AFTER WINNING THREE STRAIGHT

January 9. Lauver wrenches ankle on basketball floor. His "wife" Willie gives required assistance.

January 10. Keller wonders how he will get his shirt on over his wings. Huntington receives replies from many of the cards that Glee Club fellows sent to girls for him.

January 11. A few of the fellows skipped church, but Prof. gave each one a demerit, even if he wasn't there himself. Misses Mowery and Stumpf's birthday.

January 12. Mary Wagner returns. Harkins on the job. Start training table for athletes, Sam Rine, and "Red" Streamer. Himes and "Cuba" get to dinner on time.

January 13. Streamer elected cheer leader at mass meeting, yes, his hair is red. Danowsky again says grace. Mohn has a feed and charges each of his invited guests two cents.

January 14. Varsity trims Lebanon Valley, 35-11. Follmer and Young star. Rousing good yells. Theologs visit the town bottling works.

January 15. Keller forgets that he is married and attends the church social with a little Wray of sunshine near his heart. Irvin shoots some of his egotistic stuff.

January 16. Team defeats Delaware College at Newark, 26-14. Young breaks elbow. Pern Mohn makes a dying request that we do not reveal his many faults in this column.

January 17. Team defeats Muhlenburg, 33-21. Manager Ditzler buys a turkey dinner in Philadelphia. "Cy" Ard and Prof. Faust escort Misses Shields and Moreau to the movies.

January 18. For the first time the fellows take the dormitory cherubs to evening church service. That's one way of getting them. Victories celebrated.

January 19. Freshmen spend day collecting material for bon-fire, which follows Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. reception. Light too bright for several couples so they take seats on the grandstand.

January 20. Many students enjoy skating and so forth. Big bird show. Chippies carry off blue ribbon.

January 21. Glee Club gives concert in Peoples' theatre at Sunbury. Swoope's prospective mother-in-law visits. Seems to be well pleased with "Red." Kinports makes six trips down town. Hadn't you better take a suit case?

January 22. "Prexy" returns. Steam plant ordered to run on half time. Franz Kohler, Bohemian Violinist, gives recital in Seibert Hall. Prof. Fry has attack of "acute indigestion."

January 23. Tribe of enthusiasts accompany team to Lewisburg where we get the little end of a 25-20 score. Great display of fireworks on campus.

January 24. Rain. Follmer escorts the "remainder" of the family to the dorm. Streamer officiates at the table where the entire sextette from "Weaverland" is seated. Abe Miller swims down country to see his girl.

January 25. Spooners active in conservatory and elsewhere. Many attend Stough booze lecture at Sunbury. Church.

January 26. "Deen" Philips does the hook slide as she enters psychology class. "Prexy" announces his candidacy for Congress.

January 27. Coach Kelchner goes skating with one skate. Girls' basketball team begins practice. Chris Schmuck tries football tactics.

January 28. Professor in physics: "Now, Mr. Ard, when you look in the mirror what do you see?" Dr. Aikens makes poverty plea in chapel. Mass meeting at 7 o'clock.

"SLEEPY HOLLOW EATS"

January 29. We defeat Gettysburg, 35-30. Some nerve racking forty minutes.

January 30. Stough speaks in Methodist church. All there except Brown and Groninger. "Chris" follows the advice of her classmates and attempts to cure a sty in her eye by daily applications of pennyroyal tea.

January 31. Fellows rubbed out of a lot of cash through various faker games at Y. W. C. A. social. "Nuts." "Prexy" goes to State College to look after his movies. Measuring social in Seibert Hall. Streamer gets in free.

FEBRUARY

February 1. Misses Rayman and Evans take campus. Boyer and Keener plead guilty. "Judge" Harman caught spooning. Keller loses his bed clothes.

February 2. Keller washes his class hat. He looks like a 200 pound man in short trousers. "Ted" is happy. One day that she didn't need to write to him. Ground hog day. Fellows compel Rine to stay in his room, as sun shines brightly.

February 3. Walker, Jr., evinces his love for "nuts" and even implicates Walter Brown. Sophs decide in which sports they excel and then publicly challenge Freshmen. "Baby" Harman hisses when Freshies accept.

February 4. Mrs. Alice McClure speaks in chapel. Girls attend basketball practice in a body.

February 5. Team defeated at Gettysburg.

February 6. Follmer says no one will get his seat in front on way to Emmitsburg, but unfortunately for him the drive back was through a driving rain. "Miggs" does the Marathon through the streets of York. Representatives of Y. M. C. A. go to State College.

February 7. Pleasanton takes Shannon to movies. Team returns in time for breakfast. Rose forgets to get up.

February 8. Prof. Faust skips church, therefore, only two theologs present.

February 9. LANTHORN Board takes a rest.

February 10. Juniata defeated here, 49-27. Keller short circuits the electric bells. Dr. McGuire lectures on his trip through Africa.

February 11. Gross and Shannon hurry out of dining room to take campus but their girls stay in, being entertained by Ard and Miggs. Sophs cut class by making exit from History room via the window.

February 12. "Prexy" gives illustrated lecture in Science Hall to try out new Reflectoscope. Pleasanton does a somersault while Shannon makes a broad jump in their haste to get a back seat.

February 13. Joint program of literary societies. Mass meeting. Y. W. C. A. rubes students again by selling ice cream and cake.

February 14. We trim Bucknell, 41-15. On account of the victory Prof. Brungart is deprived of his annual opportunity for cussing.

February 15. All fellows at church excepting Ard and Gross.

February 16. Sophs win inter-class track meet from Freshies.

February 17. Prof. Fry leaves for visit home.

February 18. Sledding parties spend the evening at Freeburg and Freemont. Kinports loses his purse. Other things lost, maybe. Come home in rain. Few get wet.

February 19. Fellows crab all day; "Prexy" puts the kibosh on campus.

February 20. "Prexy" cleans out chapel at 9:30 A. M. when he discovers the room being made a den for the amorous. Sleighing party goes to Port Treverton.

February 21. Girls' Glee Club under assistant manager Gross go to Beaver Springs. A number of male students accompany them. Varsity goes to Albright.

February 22. Girls return home badly in need of sleep. "Cy" accompanies Flossy to Sunbury.

February 23. D. A. R. Contest won by Styer. Dr. Aikens too ill to teach. Dr. Floyd conducts chapel services.

February 24. A number of Selinsgrove people are tortured in Masonic Temple by University Glee Club. Lutton's girl returns.

February 25. Klepfer's girl notifies him not to come home for a week or so. "Prexy" becomes bedfast for the first time in his life. Academy defeats Selinsgrove H. S. Scrubs are maltreated at Sunbury.

February 26. Edward Clarke, Baritone Artist, sings to appreciative audience.

February 27. Varsity suffers first home defeat of season at the hands of Albright. Kniseley loses false teeth at a candy pull.

February 28. "Snooky" is disappointed by Ard and Gross and goes to society alone. "Cy" Ard "drunk." Bill Swartz fixes him up with home remedies and plaster. Plesanton thinks that legs are what make a horse go, a dog come, and a man stay.

MARCH

March 1. Danowsky: How do you like the waffles? Ard: All right, only this one is pretty white on the bottom. More snow. Rousing good club meeting.

March 2. "Prof. Domehead" Dolbeer is ducked while throwing snow in Smith's room. Pern Mohn calls on his down-town girl. Fellows call on Pern and demand an explanation of "that mysterious rag."

March 3. Keammerer called home on urgent business. Club has its first feed. Himes acts as Chef. Fellows report ice cream as only thing well prepared.

March 4. Junior girls have their hair done up squaw fashion. "Prexy" calls down Professors Faust and Keener during chapel service. Dr. Fisher gives illustrated lecture.

"MATING SEASON"

March 5. Dr. Floyd gives illustrated lecture on "Countries bordering on the Mediterranean." Sam Rine falls victim to Rough's furious temper on basketball floor and is almost annihilated by the terrific attack. Smith preached a sermon on "The Prince of Peace" the preceding Sunday.

March 6. Varsity defeated by Juniata, 40-37. Girls take baths in gymnasium. "Poppy" Horton orders more disinfectant. Fellows on trip make Dorothy's acquaintance. For further particulars ask Manager Ditzler. Himes hugs Bastian underneath the porch.

March 7. Scrubs defeated by Bucknell Academy. Keller arranges his room for mother-in-law, but is disappointed. He then goes down town and takes "Cuppy" for an unchaperoned stroll. Stumpf and Pfiel come to blows.

March 8. Chris is excited. "Gus" goes to Danville to see his other girl. Gross attends church.

March 9. Poor "Nig," dormitory cat, is dissected in biology. Fire department out. A number of the stout hearts secure excuse cards after they see the innocent blood upon Abe's shirt front.

March 10. "Prexy" tells class in Evidences of Christianity that pumpkins grow so fast in Kansas that they are worn off by being drawn over the ground by the fast growing stalks. A fair number of theologs attend the joint meeting of the two Christian associations. Rev. Michaels talks.

March 11. "Prexy" bemoans the fact that we have had a hard winter—60 tons of coal in 19 days. Also an enormous electric light bill.

March 12. Freshies gloriously defeat Sophs in class basketball game, not even allowing them a field goal. Look what the training table did. Phillips was the unfortunate victim of rough-house work.

March 13. Spooners' Association hold extra session in Clio after factotum has closed. Muhlenburg defeated, 39-21. Swoope elected next year's basketball captain.

March 14. Keller sends his last photograph to his Punxsutawney girl.

March 15. "Dad" Knights, acting as detective, accuses Harman of lack of demonstrative affection while taking campus. After entering church Gross says to Miss Stumpf, who was leaning forward in her seat: "What's the trouble, Flossie?" She answered, after a moment of silence: "I always pray when I enter a church." Prof. Keener and Young clean ice off sidewalks. Kinports finds lost pocketbook.

March 16. Juniors defeat Freshmen in inter-class basketball game, 29-10.

March 17. "Top of the mornin' to yez." Girls give splendid Gym exhibition. "Doc" Dunn also does some stunts. "Red's" defeat the "Greens" in basketball game, 6-0. Calves of all descriptions on exhibition. Smith the only student who does not attend.

March 18. Juniors defeat Seniors in closely contested basketball game, 15-13, thereby winning the first inter-class loving cup. "I couldn't play basketball on account of my ingrown toe nails," Bill Swartz says, "but I believe I can make good in baseball."

March 19. Ethel Irene Brown explains to Kline that the purpose of the draped goods on the back of her dress is to carry her papoose in.

March 20. Swartz and Rothfuss come to blows. Freshies give the Sophs the slip and beat it to Milton where they have a sumptuous banquet. The '16 men took for granted that they had established a precedent which must be followed when they failed to have a class banquet last year. Book goes to press. Our sentiments the same as those of last year's board.

THE FOOTBALL MAN

Blessings on thee, noble man
With jolly eyes and cheeks of tan!
How royally thou marchest on
The field, and, fleet as snowy fawn
Dost throw thine enemies, and then
Return, the hero of all men.
Among thy throng of friends dost go,
Forgetting sorrow, even woe,
To receive that laurel wreath,
While all thy friends their praises breathe
All hail! Thy life's but just begun—
Thy triumphs have not all been won;
Be brave, be just, persevere,
And future glories will be near.

RIVERSIDE PHILOSOPHY

No man knows himself, not even a self-made man.
More men would be Prohibitionists only they don't like cloves.
Don't wait for the fool-killer. Do it yourself.
Many a man has a mighty small excuse for feeling big.
Many a woman uses make-up merely because she hasn't the cheek to do without it.
The devil rejoices more in one hypocrite than in ninety and nine genuine Simon Pure sinners.
Most of us feel that Nature intended us for bigger jobs than we get.
Heaven would be overcrowded if we could all get there with our tombstone inscriptions as passports.
You can never tell. Genius sometimes wears clothes that fit.
A woman can't throw a stone, but did you ever see one who couldn't hurl defiance?
Some men fall in love and never get on their feet again.

EDUCATION

Perhaps you are in a better position to give your children educational advantages than your parents were.

At any rate, you want them to be equipped to battle with the world's problems, and no doubt realize your obligation and will do everything in your power to give them splendid educational advantages.

Are you neglecting their education along musical lines. It's one of the most important parts of a girl's education, and the boy's too for that matter.

The young lady who plays the piano has a decided advantage over the one who does not possess this accomplishment, and your daughter should have every advantage that you can give her.

The Piano will make the home more enjoyable and cheerful—it represents an investment that pays dividends in Joy and Pleasure every day.

Let us interest you in one of our high grade instruments. Satisfactory terms can be arranged at

HERE AND THERE

UNIVERSITY—A place for elevating sons above the social rank of their fathers. In the American universities men are ranked as follows: 1, Don Juans. 2, Fullbacks. 3, Boozers. 4, Pitchers and catchers. 5, Poker players. 6, Turkey trotters. 7, Scholars. 8, Christians.

THEATRE—A place where bad ideas are filtered through worse actors.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE—The theory that since the stars following a wallop in the eye are optical delusions, the wallop itself is a delusion and the eye another.

WIFE—One who always believes the worst.

CHAPERONS—Between two fires.

NUISANCES—1. The struggle for existence. 2. Advice. 3. Professional Southerners. 4. Postage stamps. 5. The woman who leaves powder on your coat.

PRONUNCIATION OF MUSICAL TERMS IN AMERICA:

Berceuse—beer-souse

Andante—and-aumty

Scherzo—shirts-oh

Final—fine-ally

Mezzo—messo

SUGGESTED NAME FOR BOOZERS DAUGHTER—Ethyl.

IMMORTALITY—A compromise between marriage and suicide.

BINGAMAN, SPARE THAT SHIRT

Bingaman, spare this shirt!

Make not a single tear!

Just remove the dirt,

But leave the buttons there.

This covered me last week;

I have one more to wear.

For this shirt's life I speak—

Please handle it with care.

'Twas my own clumsy hand

That sewed the buttons on;

Don't tear the collar band,

For then the shirt is gone.

I'll pay the price you ask,

The cash I'll promptly give—

Be gentle at this task,

And let the good shirt live.

College Tooth Paste

A pleasant and most agreeable pure white paste, which keeps the teeth and gums in a perfectly healthy condition, arresting decay, healing sore and spongy gums, also a germ destroyer, preventing disease from entering the system through the mouth; is delicate and refreshing, combines the pleasant antiseptic properties of a liquid, together with the cleansing, whitening properties of a powder. Sold at drug counters everywhere or direct for 25 cents.

College Tooth Powder

For those who prefer a delicate tooth powder, we recommend College Tooth Powder. It contains all the beneficial ingredients required by the dental practitioner. The greatest care has been taken to supply a neutral tooth powder that will absolutely keep your teeth white and free from tartar, gums hard and healthy, breath sweet and clean. It is a delightful, refreshing, and pleasant dentifrice put up in the latest improved tins. Sold by all druggists, 25 cents.

OROCIDE

ANTISEPTIC

GERMICIDE

NON-TOXIC

Its power to destroy the most virulent bacteria establishes its worth as an antiseptic in the treatment of ulcers, wounds, etc., and as a DAILY MOUTH WASH; it is an absolute necessity where bridge work or regulating appliances are used.

OROCIDE is an efficient remedy in the treatment and cure of all mucus inflammations, canker-sores, stomatitis, thrush, sore throat, tonsilitis, quinsy, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc.

OROCIDE is sold in original three and sixteen ounce bottles at 25 cents and $1.00.

Should your dealer not have these articles, a letter to us, enclosing price, with his name, will receive prompt attention.

Summertime Is Always on Tap in Homes Heated by Steam or Hot Water

☞ The luxuries of Yesterday are the necessities of today. A house comfortably heated is as much a necessity as a telephone. Once used it is not a question of who can afford to have, but who can afford to do without.

We have heated your university, why not your home ?

The 1915 Lanthorn

“Our rebels now are ended. These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, thin air :
And like the baseless fabrie of vision,
The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve,
And, like this unsubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind. We are such stuff
As dreams are made on ; and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep.”
